Japs Raid Again, Canton's Toll 7,500

BOMBERS DEFY PROTESTS BY WORLD POWERS

Planes Drop Death Charges on Civilian Centers in 10th Attack in 11 Days.

RAIL STATION IN RUINS

Munitions Shipping Center Destroyed to Halt China's Drive Near Hankow.

BULLETIN

SHANHAI—(U.P.)—A Japanese spokesman asserted today that Japanese airplanes will continue to bomb Canton "with even greater vigor" in order to make the Chinese realize that "it is futile to resist." He also indicated that mass air raids would be made soon on Hankow, the provisional Chinese capital.

(By United Press)

CANTON — (By telephone to Hong Kong) — Japanese airplanes, defying world-wide protests against the bombing of civilian centers, raided this ravaged "capital of South China" twice today

They were the ninth and tenth raids on Canton in 11 days and sent the casualty list mounting to at least 7,500 killed and wounded.

Four bombers roared over the populous residential districts from 6 a. m. to 7 a. m., and dropped their cargoes. At 2 p. m., a large squadron returned and showered bombs on the Wongsha station area, in the southwestern suburbs near the Shameen district inhabited by foreigners The Wongsha station has been the clearing house of munitions and war equipment en route north to Hankow, where the Chinese intend to make a determined fight.

Residences Destroyed.

In the morning raid, bombs fell in the residential districts of Tungshan and Saichwan. Heretofore, the Japanese have claimed that bombs were dropped only on military objectives In addition, they said that the Chinese had had ample warning to move away from such fortified points or suffer the consequences.

Today's bombings were not as devastating as previous ones. The casualties could not be determined immediately, but all observers agreed on the 7,500 casualty fig-

Connecting bedrooms, with all sorts of conveniences, including telephonic service to any part of train, are features on trains on both roads.

The big black "iron horses" that used to come to a panting stop at the Mansfield station of the Pennsylvania railroad are forgotten in the evolution of transportation which, on Wednesday, June 15, will see new streamlined luxury trains flash through Mansfield on their 16-hour run between New York and Chicago—though they will not stop here. Five new luxury trains will go into service on two main railroads of the east, June 15; modernized editions of the Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central lines; and the Broadway Limited, the General, the Spirit of St. Louis and the Liberty Limited of the Pennsylvania. Of the Pennsylvania trains, all will go through Mansfield except the St. Louis. The old open observation platforms have given way to glass enclosed cars with built-in sofas and club chairs that face the windows. Decorations and color schemes are as attractive as in the most modern homes, and there are connecting bedrooms, master bedrooms and even suites of rooms. Telephone service to all parts of the train bring food, drinks, valet or maid at a moment's notice. Which is quite a jump from the old Pullmans, with their curtained berths.

ONE SPIRITED RACE IN SIGHT FOR PRIMARY

Contest Between Ex-G. O. P. Allies for State Central Committee in Spotlight.

FEW OTHER PETITIONS

Only 27 Filed to Date Out of Expected 200 With Deadline Just Three Days Away.

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

With only 27 of a possible 200 or more nominating petitions filed in the county today, three days before the filing deadline Friday, there appeared a prospect of only one spirited county contest in the primary election Aug. 2.

That contest—for the 17th district Republican state central committee post—is between Earl A. McFarland and R. B. Gardner, one-time political allies who "split" while McFarland was mayor of Mansfield.

Rift In Ranks Mended.

That the G. O. P. board of strategy had accomplished results in its attempt to mend the rift in Republican ranks was seen in the apparent abandoning of Gardner's proposal to run a complete slate of county central committeemen of his own.

Although it was reported early in the campaign that both McFarland and Gardner would present their own precinct committeemen, G. O. P. leaders today were of the opinion that there would be few if any contests over the 92 committee posts to be filled in the county in August.

A full slate of candidates for the four 17th district central committee posts on both tickets had filed with the election board, but precinct committee candidates and aspirants for the three county offices to be filled next fall were scarce.

One 2 Republicans File.

With 92 county precinct committeemen to be selected on each ticket, only two Republicans had filed today. It was believed, however, that petitions were being held up while McFarland and Gardner backers awaited developments in the other's ranks

GILLETTE LEADS WEARIN, MARGIN NEARING 2 TO 1

Representative Supported By Hopkins And Young Roosevelt Concedes He's Beaten In Senate Race; G. O. P. Picks Dickinson, Ex-Senator.

(By Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Ia.—Democratic Sen. Guy M. Gillette's lead over Rep. Otha D. Wearin continued to grow today as Wearin forces conceded defeat in the face of mounting returns in Iowa's senatorial primary election.

Gillette, foe of President Roosevelt's supreme court plan, piled up 63,573 votes in unofficial returns from 1,845 out of 2,447 precincts, to 34,989 for Wearin, backed by WPA Chief Harry L. Hopkins and tacitly supported by James Roosevelt, son and secretary of the president.

J. Don Kerlin, Wearin campaign aid, disclosed today that he had sent a congratulatory telegram to Senator Gillette.

Three other candidates for the Democratic nomination were far behind the leaders.

Former Sen. L. J. Dickinson rolled up 117,008 votes in returns from 1,845 precincts to lead Rep. Lloyd Thurston in a two-way Republican senatorial race. Thurston polled 90,127 votes in the unofficial tabulation.

If returns continued to follow the same trend, it would not be necessary to refer the question of selecting a senatorial nominee to the Democratic state convention next month. Iowa law requires the leading candidate to poll at least 35 percent of the votes cast for the office at stake. Otherwise nomination must be made by convention.

Favored by Hopkins.

Wearin's candidacy received national attention when WPA Chief Harry L. Hopkins said:

"I would vote for Wearin on his record if I lived in Iowa."

Returns were scanned closely by political leaders early today for evidences of specific trends attributable to the WPA vote. Iowa has 33,500 project workers on its WPA rolls.

All four opponents of the senator sought nomination on platforms of 100 per cent support for the New Deal. Gillette expressed his "intense loyalty" to the president in the face of Wearin's claims of a White House blessing for his candidacy. The senator, however, made it clear throughout the campaign that he was reserving the right to oppose New Deal measures if he thought them unwise.

Gillette voted against the NRA and the first draft of the 1933 AAA besides the court measure.

STUDIES BIDS ON WATER PROJECT

Board of Control Receives 15 Proposals for Materials to Be Used on Woodland Job.

The city board of control today was studying the proposals of 15 firms on bids submitted on the various materials to be used in the construction of the Woodland water project.

The bids were opened yesterday afternoon by the board of control which consists of Mayor Claude M. Hunter and Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert.

Mayor Hunter explained that the contracts will not be awarded until the $64,000 in waterworks mortgage revenue bonds are sold. Bids on the bonds will be opened June 13.

Specifications on the various materials call for the delivery of approximately 9,000 feet of various size cast iron pipe, 17 tons of various size fittings, 17 tons of caulking lead and approximately 25 various size vales.

Of the four firms which submitted bids on the various size pipe and fittings, the United States Pipe and Foundry company, Chicago, was low with a base bid of $34,412.88, which was approximately $3,500 lower than the closest competitor the Hughes Supply company, Mansfield, which bid $37,985.42.

Ten firms submitted bids on the various size valves. The Ludow Valve Manufacturing company, Troy, N. Y., had a low base bid of $2,212 which was $142

DEM CHIEF HAS CONCRETE 'PLAN'

Kallmerten Urges City to Use 'Pre-Mix' Handled by His Firm Exclusively.

E. B. Kallmerten, chairman of the Richland county Democratic executive committee, today appealed to city officials to consider a plan of sidewalk construction that would increase the sale of one of the products distributed exclusively by the firm of Kallmerten and Bacr, of which he is president.

At the conclusion of a one-hour conference this morning with Kallmerten and R. O. Davies, secretary and general manager of the firm in his office, Mayor Claude M. Hunter, said he would take the plan "under advisement" and would probably call a meeting with Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert and Sidewalk Inspector Tod Patton to consider the proposition.

Before meeting with the mayor, however, Kallmerten and Davies talked with Patton and Styert who declined to change the present setup of construction on the WPA program that employs 250 men.

City officials said that Kallmerten proposed that the city use a pre-mix concrete in the sidewalk construction in order to keep employes of his firm on the payroll. He said otherwise they would have to be laid off due to business conditions, officials reported.

Mayor Hunter said Kallmerten

RANSOM NOTE?

Florida Paper Says G-Men Get $5 Bill Paid in Cash Case.

PRINCETON, Fla. — (AP) — The Miami Daily News said today federal agents recovered a $5 bill that was part of the $10,000 ransom James Bailey Cash, sr., vainly paid for the return of his five-year-old son, James, jr.

In a copyrighted article the News said the bill was spotted by a filling station attendant in Jacksonville who notified the federal bureau of investigation and that G-men caught the men who passed it on a highway between there and Tallahassee.

They were two Tennessee policemen returning home after a vacation in Miami, the paper said, and were released after being questioned. Where they obtained the bill was not ascertained.

'SAFETY TOWN' GETS TINY CARS

Miniature Red Automobiles to Be Used to Teach Traffic Safety to Youngsters.

Twenty-five toy automobiles — all red ones, too—will glide over the miniature streets of "Safety Town" when the pre-school traffic game opens under the direction of the city recreation department at the Woodland school playlot next Monday.

This announcement was made today by Patrolman Frend C. Boals who conceived the idea of teaching pre-school children traffic regulations with the game of "motorist" and "pedestrian" with the use of the miniature street layout and a small traffic light.

Boals said today that 25 toy automobiles were purchased by the Richland county Automobile club yesterday and that they will be delivered to the city recreation department in time for the opening of the toy town, June 13.

This calls for a revision of the plans previously announced, Boals said. "Safety Town" will be opened at the Woodland school and will continue for one week and will be extended to all the city playgrounds for one week periods during the summer.

Al Fendrick, city recreation director, who will have charge of the project announced that the traffic game of instruction will be under a trained supervisor.

He said the tentative schedule for "Safety Town" will follow in one week periods in the order listed: Woodland school, Prospect park, Hedges school, West First street, Brinkerhoff, Johns park, Liberty park, Western avenue school, West Fifth street school and two weeks at Shelby playgrounds.

"Safety Town" which made its debut at Prospect park last summer consists of a miniature city laid out in streets with four intersections at which a traffic light operates.

VOTES TODAY

Butler Township Ballots on $14,000 Bonds for Hall.

Voters in Butler township in northeastern Richland county went to the polls in the rain today to ballot on a $14,000 bond issue for the construction of a new township hall at Adario.

Proposed by township trustees, the bond issue would be payable over a 15-year period and would call for a 2.26 mill levy above the 10-mill limitation. A 65 per cent majority of the vote cast is required for passage.

The county board of elections sent 325 ballots to the township for the election, but because of the rain, it was expected that the actual vote would be below that figure. Voting booths were set up in the township grange hall.

Trustees seek the funds to build a township hall to replace one destroyed by fire last December during a grange meeting in the building.

California Farmers Try To Salvage Flood-Damaged Crops.

FRESNO, Calif.—(AP)—Farmers of the Tulare lake basin mustered an army of trucks and all available harvesters today in an effort to save from a slowly spreading flood what remained of a $1,000,000 crop.

Cotton and sugar beet crops valued at $400,000 were washed away when levees collapsed under pressure of rapidly melting snow. Hopes still were held for wheat and barley crops.

Council To Mix Gas, Relief And Paving At Session Tonight

City council tonight will mix gas rates, relief financing and streets when it meet in regular session at city hall.

All indications are that the city fathers will vote for renewal of the present gas rate ordinance at its third and final reading tonight.

The ordinance which will continue the present gas rates for a three year period—$1 for the first 500 cubic feet and 50 cents per thousand for all over that—is intended to replace the contract with the Ohio Fuel Gas company that expired May 15.

There seemed to be no question about passage of the bill. All nine councilmen have indicated that they will oppose any increase, in rates and Mayor Claude M. Hunter has stated that he will veto any ordinance that will increase rates. The company has made no proposal.

From the question of gas council will turn to the problem of financing relief when it considers placing a 2-mill relief levy on the ballot for the August primaries. The levy would raise approximately $90.000 annually for a two-year period.

The legislation which was drafted today will be submitted by Mayor Hunter as an emergency measure who will seek to have a copy of the resolution filed with the county board of elections before the filing deadline Friday.

Also up for approval tonight will be a borrowing ordinance in the amount of $25,600 for the issuance of notes in anticipation of the collection of assessments for the improvements on three city streets. These will include the borrowing of $14.000 for the paving of Ausdale avenue, $7.100 for Bartley avenue and $4,500 for Willis avenue.

Cowboy Bandsman, 6 Musicians Jailed In Crawford Shooting

BUCYRUS—"Montana" Meechy, cowboy band leader, and six members of his troupe, were scheduled to broadcast from a Columbus radio station today, but instead they were in the Crawford county jail to await a hearing on charges of assault with intent to kill.

They were arrested by Crawford county officers in Columbus yesterday just before they were to go on the air. The charges were filed by Kencel McClenathan, 22, of Galion. Meechy and his band members were to be arraigned at 2 p. m. today before Justice of Peace J. N. Taylor here.

McClenathan brought charges against the group following an altercation last Friday at a dance hall at Sugar Grove lake near Bucyrus. Prosecutor Leo Scanlon said. One of the defendants named in the warrants was Meechy's son, Ben, 20.

McClenathan told authorities that the band leader, who was playing at the dance hall, hit him over the head with the butt of a revolver and shot at him, because McClenathan and an unidentified companion were scuffling on the dance floor. It required 14 stitches to close the wound in the youth's head.

Meechy warned the pair to be quiet, and was challenged to "have it out" as soon as the dance ended. the injured youth related. McClenathan was hurt in the fight that followed and in which Meechy and his band members participated, officers said.

Where's Our Community Pride?

What's Wrong With Mansfield?

Every city in Ohio the size of Mansfield topped its Community Fund quota this year EXCEPT our city. Even if we aren't interested in the welfare of the boys and girls of the city; even if we are indifferent to the work done by the Visiting Nurses and the Milk Fund for undernourished school children—community pride alone should guarantee the $6,000 needed to put OUR Community Fund over the top.

The greatest testimony for the agencies of the Community Fund are that the citizens who work closest to them and know them best are the ones who give the most.

$1,000,000 Ohio Relief 'Stop-Gap' Measure Doomed

CITIES HOLD BILL WOULDN'T SOLVE CRISIS

Assembly Leaders, Foreseeing Defeat of Legislation, Hunt New Revenue Sources.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — A stop-gap $1,000,000 loan bill apparently dead because it would not aid sorely-pressed cities, new sources for poor relief revenue were sought urgently today by a "town meeting" of legislative leaders and business interests.

Death of the lending bill was forecast last night when large cities' representatives told a senate committee it would not provide any additional funds since advances under the measure must be repaid from local communities' shares of future sales tax revenues.

These relief allocations for the rest of the year already have been spent in Cleveland, where the relief crisis is most acute, Joseph H. Crowley, Cleveland's assistant law director, said. Other spokesmen said the same situation applied in other large cities.

Made Outright Grants.

The bill originally was drafted to make outright emergency grants to local subdivisions but amended on the house floor to include the lending provision. Already passed in the house, the senate finance committee members indicated they would shelve or drastically amend it.

Speaker Frank Uible called for a continuation of his informal conferences between leading Democratic legislators and representatives and powerful capital lobbies in an effort to find an agreeable relief program.

Slated for primary consideration was a proposal by State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley that a relief tax be levied against all state revenues, "clipping" each department's funds by a small percentage.

Knisley said such a tax, at the rate of 2½ per cent, against all 1938 funds would raise between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 as the state's share of $13,000,000 to $17,000,000 estimated as needed for relief the rest of this year.

Discussed also was a companion proposal that municipalities "assess" their local operating funds a similar amount.

State departments affected would be forced to reduce expenses by the amount of the diversion since the legislature would, for practical purposes, reduce existing appropriations to maintain a balanced budget.

'Scotch Dominie' Celebrates 98th Birthday Today

Mansfield's "Little Scotch Dominie" is 98 years old today—and there's nothing that can be said about him that hasn't been said before.

Rev. David B. Millar, 357 Bowman street, is something of an institution in Mansfield, for he is one of the two men who have "been written up" for the past 12 years, regularly as June 7 rolls around, and frequently in between birthdays. The other oldster who shares publicity honors with him is Christopher Frye, Civil war veteran who is "98, going on 99."

In those 12 years Rev. Millar has been pretty well interviewed and his philosophy and gentle humor analyzed and quoted. He has given his program for longevity many times—frugality in eating, lots of sleep, plenty of work, an easy conscience, contentment and happiness in the little things of life.

The story of his life has been told many times; his birth at Glasgow, Scotland on June 7, 1840; his apprenticeship, his hard, happy youth and determination to study for the ministry; his coming to America at the end of the Civil war; his ministry in America and his coming to Mansfield in 1907.

And so on his 98th birthday there is little to say—except that Mansfielders point to him with pride, and say:

"There's the little Scotch dominie—he's near a hundred and he still leads in prayer and preaches occasionally and gets around town and is happier than most men. That's SOMETHING, isn't it?"

Earl A. Mann, 709 West Third street, knew he had a cousin that had a pretty good eye for a target, but he didn't know he was a champion until he read last night's News-Journal. His relative is Mark Hootman of Hicksville, who broke 198 out of 200 targets at Vandalia over the week-end to win the state trapshooting championship. To win the title he had to defeat Joe Heistand of Hillsboro, one of the nation's ranking marksmen.

Although he wasn't able to appear at the Liberty park dedication Sunday, Gov. Martin L. Davey was in Mansfield today—unofficially. The governor stopped at the Mansfield-Leland last night, on his way back to Columbus from Cleveland, where he broadcast last night. Either the governor likes Mansfield, or else it's just a handy spot to stop, for he's been here three times—still unofficially—in the last few weeks. He has also been invited here for an official appearance at the Ahepa convention Sunday.

J. Gilbert Baird and R. O. Richards of Westinghouse, two of the "bigger and better" entertainment producers of Mansfield, are going around with preoccupied looks these days. They've promised the officials of the Mansfield Public Parks association that they'll put on a show for them for the community Fourth of July celebration at the Fairgrounds. But they've got to do it without money, and if you think putting on a good show without any money is something to be tossed off in an idle moment—just ask the gentlemen in question. But regardless of how they work out their problem, it's a bet they'll put on a good show.

U. S. Puts Nippon Down As Her Best Arms Customer.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Japan has become the United States' best customer for war supplies.

The state department published figures today showing that Japan had passed China during the last six months, although Brazil led all other nations in May alone, when she bought $1,494,824 worth of arms and ammunition. Japan spent $1,334,608 to rank second in May.

Exports of war supplies to China and Japan in the six months exceeded those for the entire previous fiscal year, which, for the national munitions control board of the state department, begins Dec. 1.

CIO DELIBERATELY FOSTERED AKRON RIOTING, DAVEY SAYS

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—Governor Martin L. Davey accused Committee for Industrial Organization leaders of deliberately fostering a riot in Akron on May 26 "as a surprise move to take forcible control of a city," in his weekly political broadcast last night.

The governor charged that the CIO had observed "a policy of harassment" of Akron rubber companies and had "driven more than 15,000 jobs out of Akron."

"A week ago Thursday night a terrible riot occurred in front of the Goodyear factory without warning," Governor Davey said. "There was no strike. Suddenly on Thursday evening the CIO leaders made use of the radio, calling men for picket duty at the Goodyear.

"CIO leaders were determined to close the factory by mass violence when no strike had been called. They proposed to keep workmen from their jobs by force, without telling anyone what it was all about."

He said another on the following Tuesday was averted only because national guard troops were held ready for mobilization.

"They knew that these troops would be there within a few hours, and that the majesty of the law and the dignity of the state of Ohio would be maintained," he said. "And so they beat a hasty retreat and came to an agreement."

The governor charged John L. Lewis, CIO chief, with being "one of the big causes for the present depression."

"John L. Lewis and his radical henchmen have said that I can not be governor of Ohio again, but I serve notice on them now that I will be governor until next January, and that they can not carry on bloody rebellions, defy all the laws and tramble under foot the sacred liberties of our people," he said.

SOUTHERN BLOC STANDING PAT ON PAY DEMAND

Wants Differentials to Stay in Measure; Fight Menace to Adjournment.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Southern senators hinted today at a fillibuster—delaying adjournment indefinitely—against any wage-hour bill which omits pay differentials.

They opposed some provisions of a compromise by which Senator Thomas (D-Utah) hoped to break a deadlock in the joint committee appointed to redraft the year-old legislation.

Predictions were general that the committee would accept Thomas' proposal, but leaders who would like to end the session Saturday expressed concern over a statement by Senator Ellender (D-La):

"There will be a full discussion in the senate."

The Thomas compromise provides, briefly, for immediate establishment of a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour, increasing to 30 cents in two years.

Up to Boards.

For the next five years, boards chosen by industries would fix the minimum in their industries. At the end of that period, a 40-cent minimum would become universal.

Southern members want exemptions from the 40-cent wage granted to some industries, because they contend living conditions in their region are lower and freight rates are discriminatory.

Demands for these exemptions were voiced yesterday at a caucus of seven southern senators, who approved the position taken by two of their number—Ellender and Pepper (D-Fla)—in the conference committee.

Representative Norton (D-NJ) indicated the house conferees would accept Thomas' proposal if the seven-year time limit were retained, but said they would oppose it if that provision were stricken out at the insistence of southern senators.

In the faint hope that a satisfactory wage-hour agreement could be reached and a long delay in adjournment avoided, congressional leaders hastened to get other legislation out of the way.

Chairman Adams (D-Colo) called a senate appropriations subcommittee into session today to begin hearings on the final deficiency appropriation bill, still pending in the house.

Attempts to reach a compromise on the $3,723,000,000 lending-spending bill were delayed because house conferees were busy with the deficiency measure, but Adams forecast a quick agreement on that major legislation.

GLATTKE TALKS

Reformatory Heads on Parole Conference Program.

Arthur L. Glattke, superintendent of Ohio State Reformatory, is in Columbus today to address the Northeastern Parole conference.

Penologists and parole officers from all over the country are in Columbus for the conference. W. K. Mackey, Mansfield, Ohio general parole officer, presided over yesterday afternoon's session. One of the speakers yesterday was Judge C. H. Huston, Mansfield.

Mrs. Martin L. Davey, wife of the governor, was hostess yesterday to a number of women attending the conference at a tea at the Executive Mansion, among them five from Mansfield. They were Mrs. Glattke, Mrs. Mackey, Mrs. George Gernhardt; H. Mrs. David Shelley and Jane Williams.

CHILD, 2, IN COMA 73 DAYS

Strange Sickness Follows Measles; Fails to Make Progress.

CHICAGO —(INS)— In a semi-coma for seventy-three days, two-year-old Mary Ellen Reardon appeared destined today to wear the tragic mantle of the city's "sleeping beauty" until taken by death.

Unlike Patricia Maguire who died last winter after lying in a deep sleep for five years, Mary Ellen is partly conscious and able to take food from a spoon.

She was stricken with measles and left with the strange sickness that has puzzled physicians so far. Her eyelids have fluttered at intervals as if she were trying to awaken but in no other way shows progress against the malady.

'50-50' CHANCE FOR JOB

NEW YORK—(INS)—The chances of a Columbia graduate this year of getting a job are fifty-percent less than last year, according to Robert F. Moore, university secretary of appointments. He said students with accounting and engineering training were in greatest demand.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Communists Are a Bit Previous If They Think We Will Follow Them

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Judging by the sudden activity of the communists in this country, their wheeling and ungainly hopping and flapping, they must think the American form of government is in its death throes.

They pride themselves on their sense of timing and grow bold only when they feel that a nation is on its way out. But they are very bad judges of the strength of nations, for they have repeatedly made the mistake of trying to pluck the eyes of a country which was not yet dead. The map shows that, except in Russia, they have failed wherever they made their move, and the net result is a loss of liberty for millions of people, a constant threat of another world war and a series of crushing victories for the very forces which communism opposes or pretends to.

Most times it is impossible to preceive with the naked eye the difference to the ordinary human being between life under a communist dictator and life under a Hitler or a Mussolini. The difference is too small a matter, anyway. And as for the period of confusion and massacre which intervenes between the death and the establishment of the dictator's discipline, it makes no difference what ism the mobs and its leaders claim to represent.

The recent communist convention made much of a quotation from Abraham Lincoln to the effect that when this people decides to dismember this government and establish an entirely different form it shall be their privilege to do so.

If this utterance could be interpreted as a preference for communism it would serve their purpose better. True, they try to interpret it so, but obviously Lincoln's words gave equal indorsement to a fascist or nationalistic revolution, and a movement of this kind, organized in resistance to disorder directed from Moscow, could, with equal right, flaunt the same phrase on its own banners.

Moreover, it will be futile for the communists at this late date to attempt to convince the Americans that the Russian conspiracy against their country is an American, nationalistic movement.

The dictatorship of the nationalistic kind is the reaction to the disruptive conspiracies of the Moscow internationalists. They select their time, make their play for power when patriotic nations are in deep trouble, and are repulsed and crushed by the fury of people driven mad by many provocations, the more exasperating because they are directed by foreigners sent from a foreign land.

Lincoln's words should be emphasized, but more as a warning to both wings of extremism than as a lure to the mass of the American people. The communists, preparing the Americans for the thought of dismemberment of their form of government, may see a day when their activities bring the retaliation which has become routine in European contests and hear the same words flung at them from the other side.

Nor can they say then that Fascism provoked the struggle. There is no Fascism yet, but it will rise in due proportion to the activities of the communists with their purpose of dismemberment. They are cunning conspirators and tongue-clever in debate, but they seem incapable of learning, though they have delivered millions of people into a condition which they and we must agree is slavery.

It doesn't follow that in case of dismemberment they will be the butchers in charge.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Next to "Alexander's Ragtime Band" the most limelighted of recent pictures is "Yellow Jack," a solid and compelling screen adaptation of the Sidney Howard-Paul de Kruif play about the conquest of yellow fever.

The Zanuck musical was no surprise to Hollywood, although it is better even than expected. "Yellow Jack" was. The teaming of Robert Montgomery and Virginia Bruce (seen last in the light "First 100 Years") suggested however unfairly that the movies were going to do awful things to another fine stage play. Instead, "Yellow Jack" gives Montgomery his best acting role since "Night Must Fall," and unreels convincingly as a story of unmelodramatic heroism. It has humanness and humor, and a little romance along with its starker business, none of it forced. There are fine performances especially by Lewis Stone, Henry Hull, Charles Coburn and Sam Levene, with Buddy Ebsen, Alan Curtis, Andy Devine and William Henry all excellent. George B. Seitz directed.

Any picture directed by Fritz Lang commands attention, and "You and Me," co-starring Sylvia Sidney and George Raft, is no exception. Convicts on parole, both employed in the same department store where the boss' hobby is giving ex-criminals a chance, are the chief characters, and the theme is crime-doesn't-pay with a new, dollars-and-cents reason. It might have been better, in this opinion, if Lang had told his metropolitan fairy tale straightforwardly without the musical preamble stating his theme, and without resorting to "impressionistic" sequences—but maybe we don't know art when we see it. And Raft might have said "Shet ep!" a few times less. But "You and Me" has much to commend, including a clever fight sequence between Raft and Guinn Williams, and a nice character performance by Vera Gordon.

"Three Comrades" is Frank Borzage's directorial version of the Erich Marie Remarque novel of post-war Germany. Robert Taylor, Franchot Tone, Robert Young are the titular trio, and Margaret Sullavan the valiant girl. That war-scarred "lost generation" marches again against despair and hunger and political strife, and gets little enough for its pains. But Borzage gets one of his better sentimental love stories against an exciting background. Miss Sullavan, Tone and Young do best by the acting, with Guy Kibbee, Henry Hull and Lionel Atwill in plump character parts.

"White Banners" is the third of Lloyd C. Douglas' way-of-life novels to reach the screen. As in "Green Light" and "The Magnificent Obsession," the lead characters philosophize and practice their preachings. Standard-bearer here, however, is accomplished Fay Bainter, whose cheerful turn-the-other-cheek tune works wonders in the tangled lives of a poor professor and his family which she "adopts" one snowy day in 1919. Whatever you may think of dramatized sermons, or the philosophy put forth, Miss Bainter's sensitive performance and the work of Claude Rains, Jackie Cooper, Bonita Granville and Kay Johnson make "White Banners" something more than acceptable. Edmund Goulding directed.

Faced With Marital Troubles

By VIRGINIA LEE

TOOTS is married and has been for four years. She is only 23 now, and her husband is 31. He doesn't like to have her go to visit her mother, and beats her black and blue when she does. His mother lives near them and he goes there every day, gives his mother money and does whatever she says.

Toots works and buys her own clothes and things for the house. Her husband also taunts her because they have no children, and she is tired of it all and thinks she had better either leave him or commit suicide. He doesn't allow her to have any company, she says, and she likes to dance and have fun.

I'm afraid, Toots, that I would not put up with a man who made a fuss when I wanted to see my mother; and who beat me. A man who takes advantage of his superior physical strength to beat a woman is the type of person I can very well count out of my life. I'm just a little afraid that if I got just one beating I would walk out and not come back. This is only theory, of course. I've heard of women who adored their men and stood by them, black eyes, bruises and all. It just seems that I couldn't take it, that is all.

You have just as much right to go to your home as your husband has to visit his, and you should do it, and if he keeps on in this way, why don't you leave? You have to work anyhow, why not have a peaceful place to live and some fun? No use committing suicide. You are young and have many good times ahead.

As to the lack of children, that is as likely to be his fault as yours. I should think you would be thankful you have no little ones to call such a man father. I am taking for granted that you are not exaggerating your woes, you see.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

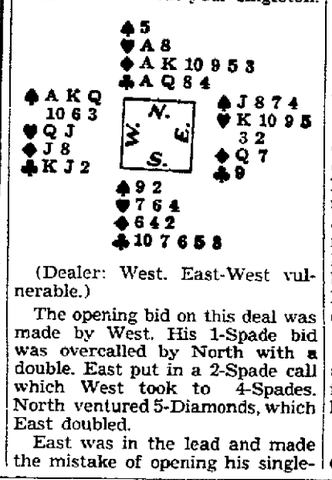
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE SINGLETON HABIT

WHEN THE bidding has given no clear clue to the side suits in the declarer's and dummy's hands, a singleton is a pretty risky lead. Isn't that suit more likely to be declarer's side strength than any other suit in which you hold more cards? Of course, if you have the ace and another trump, or the king and a couple of others, you may later be able to stop a trump run and then throw your partner in the lead for a ruff. But otherwise, you may be taking an unsound chance with your singleton.



(Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

The opening bid on this deal was made by West. His 1-Spade bid was overcalled by North with a double. East put in a 2-Spade call which West took to 4-Spades. North ventured 5-Diamonds, which East doubled.

East was in the lead and made the mistake of opening his singleton club. Declarer covered with the 10, West with the K and North won with the A. To North's surprise, the outstanding trumps dropped in two rounds. He had surely expected from the double that East held a trump trick.

The diamond 3 was then led to dummy's 6 and followed by the club 5. When West did not cover, North played the 8 then laid down the club Q, which dropped West's J. The club 4 to the 7 was the next play, and on the club 6 the heart 8 was discarded. Instead of being set, East's defense allowed North to make one overtrick, doubled.

A pinch of bicarbonate of soda added to the water in which cut flowers are placed will do much to keep them fresh.

The energies and faculties are under excellent stimuli, and it is a time for pushing these to the attainment of important objectives. New matters should flourish.

If This Is Your Birthday.

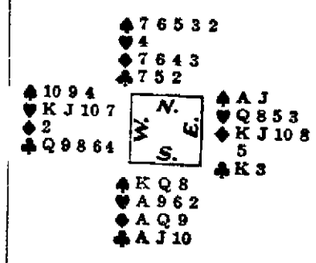
Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of splendid success in the launching of new projects, with the assurance of the substantial indorsement of meritorious propositions.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, efficient, ambitious, resolute, resourceful and have fine creative faculties. It may also have a magnanimous, free, kindly and aspirational nature.

Do not iron pongee while damp as this will either spot or stiffen the silk. Allow the pongee to dry, press on the wrong side and it will look like new.

A delicious salad can be made by stuffing peeled, chilled tomatoes with crab or shrimp salad.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

Famous Poetry Adds to Enjoyment of Life.

What wonderful magic in poetry! Beautiful lines that light precious friendship with beauty. Familiar passages that fill lonely hours with courage and cheer.

"How do I love thee? Let me
count the ways.
I love thee to the depth and breadth and height
My soul can reach . . ."

—how does the rest of Elizabeth Browning's famous sonnet go?

Remember Longfellow's stirring "Psalm of Life":

"Tell me not, in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream!"
Sam Foss's friendly lines:
"Let me live in a house by the side of the road,
Where the race of men go by—
The men who are good and the men who are bad,
As good and as bad as I."

Eugene Field's tenderness:

"The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and staunch he stands . . ."

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

How long Dicky had been standing at the glass door leading from the outside balcony to his studio, I could not tell. He had not been there while Junior was with me, I knew, for I had been facing in that direction, and would have seen him without doubt. But he had had plenty of time to observe my irresolution over the papers, and, of course, despite my own consciousness of innocence, I was aware that he had every warrant for construing my action in the fashion which he palpably was doing.

There was but one self-respecting course for me to follow, and that was to ignore the incident of the papers, and behave as I normally would when welcoming him home. But it took all my resolution to summon a cherry smile to my face as I hastened to slip back the bolt of the balcony door.

"Oh! I am so glad you could come after all," I said, talking as rapidly as I dared. "Junior has been asking for you ever since he came. He will be overjoyed when he knows you are here. I'll go and call him right away."

He had not offered to give me a greeting kiss, and I hoped that I was covering up with chatter my natural notice of the omission. But when I turned away from him, ostensibly to summon Junior, his hand shot out and gripped my wrist firmly.

"No you don't," he said grimly. "You'll answer a question or two before you go. For your information I'll tell you that I have been standing at that door for the last minute."

I looked at him steadily, and forced my voice to casualness.

"Just what has that to do with your detaining me here?" I said.

His grip unconsciously tightened on my wrist.

"Don't pull the innocent act on me," he snarled.

"Will you kindly loosen your grasp on my wrist?" I retorted. "You are hurting me."

He flung my hand from him.

Madge Defiant.

"I hope I did," he said angrily, then muttered sullenly. "I beg your pardon, of course, but really, if you play the part of a spy you must expect the treatment of one."

I faced him with eyes flashing and head thrown back defiantly.

"You will explain that remark at once," I said haughtily, "and after that, I think you will apologize."

"Fat chance of my apologizing," he said, "but I'll explain in words of one syllable. Do you remember my asking you to keep out of this studio?"

"I remember your insistence upon packing your own things," I answered steadily, "but I remember no prohibition against coming here after you had gone. And as it happens, until today I have not been in it."

"Seeing that you've been in New York ever since, isn't that remarkable?" he gibed nastily.

"I was here yesterday, and all day today so far," I returned, keeping my voice controlled with a tremendous effort. "I expect you to believe that I have not been in here before, and that I only came here a little while ago because something that happened made it necessary for me to keep Junior in here for a while. I told him that he might look through that pile of drawings on the table while I went back to the nursery—you know that you often give him the same permission."

I had carefully skirted the question of the clipped papers, determined that Dicky should be the first to mention them.

His voice was heavy with sarcasm as he finally broached the real issue between us.

"And I suppose Junior discovered the papers you so carefully secreted between the drawings just now?" he sneered.

I put down my rising temper with difficulty.

"Do you want an explanation of this thing or don't you?" I asked, careful to make my voice far less provocative than my words.

Dicky banged his fist against the table.

"Of course I want an explanation," he said. "What do you think I'm waiting around here for?"

THEATER

NO HOLLYWOOD career is more amazing than that of Richard Dix, who has been in pictures for 15 years and whose greatest roles were in "Vanishing American" and "Cimarron." He has just turned down three picture contracts to take a long motor trip with Mrs. Dix, on a round of the national parks and on to Dix' home town, St. Paul. From there they'll go to New York where he'll sell the car and they'll take a boat back to California.

Lady of the Pout.

Simone Simon, the lady of the intriguing name, pout and French accent, makes one of her few screen appearances in "Josette," which the Ohio presents for its main feature Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. And if the talents of the French star—she sings in this picture for the first time—aren't sufficient, there is an excellent cast behind her. Don Ameche and Robert Young keep her pulses pounding, and Bert Lahr, mirth-provoking comedian of stage and screen and radio, "makes up" to eccentric comedian Joan Davis. Simone's last appearance in pictures was in "Seventh Heaven." Illness, temperament and litigation have kept her busy outside of screen work.

Bogart Turns Hero.

Humphrey Bogart, the man of "a thousand villainies" on the screen, wraps a nobler cloak around himself in "Crime School," Madison theater feature. Bogart is the hero instead of the villain, the man who tries to keep boys straight instead of making crooks of them. He is the commissioner appointed by the governor to clean up the graft-ridden institutions for juvenile delinquents, and one in particular where a gang of boys from his home city is incarcerated. One of them has a pretty sister, and romance has its innings. Gale Page, screen newcomer, and the gang of boys who were in "Dead End" make up the major part of the cast.

The Best Years.

Mansfield movie goers who were unable to see Will Rogers in "Life Begins at 40" when it was shown here before, have an opportunity to see the late comedian in one of his "tailor-made" roles, for a reissue of the picture is one of the Majestic features this week. This, you will recall, is the story of the small town editor who found that the best years of a man's life were after 40. Will finds that he began to live all over again the lives of the young people around him. Rochelle Hudson and Robert Cromwell bring the romance of the young school teacher and the boy who was "railroaded" to prison, and who had a powerful friend in the editor. A British-made film, "The Girl Was Young" is the second feature.

Comedy and Mystery.

A romantic comedy of the "batty" variety and an intriguing mystery story make up the bill at the Ritz for Wednesday and Thursday. Carole Lombard and Fernand Gravet are starred in "Fools For Scandal," a gay and nonsensical comedy of a motion picture star in France incognito, who is pursued by an impoverished young nobleman, not for her money, but for herself. Ralph Bellamy is seen as the not-too-bright fiance of Miss Lombard. Others in the picture are Isabel Jeans, Marie Wilson, and Allen Jenkins. George Sanders, who recently scored a hit as the older brother in "Four Men and a Prayer" has the title role in "Lancer Spy," an interest-holding story of espionage. Dolores Del Rio and Peter Lorre are also at the head of the cast.

Horatio Alger Certainly Could Have Gone to Town on Armstrong's Story.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK — (AP) — Success story: Just seven years ago a flat-broke little colored boy named Henry Armstrong migrated from St. Louis to Los Angeles to try his luck . . . He spent his first night in Los Angeles in a mission flop house . . . Today he is featherweight and welterweight boxing champion, and may be wearing the lightweight crown before the summer is over . . . He has fixed up his family built a home for himself and has a $100,000 annuity that will be paid off this year and will net him $100 per week for the rest of his life . . . This corner predicts Henry will retire, the only boxer in history to wear three crowns on the same dome, when and if he beats Lou Ambers. . . . Nice going, Henry, and wouldn't old Horation Alger go to town on that one.

Eddie Brietz

But Henry had better steer clear of Ceferino Garcia, who is a full fledged 147-pound welterweight (not an overgrown lightweight like Ross) and packs enough punch to put Henry to sleep for a long, long time.

Among those who sat in a box seat at the Yankee stadium Sunday and pulled hard for Lefty Gomez in his unsuccessful start against the Browns, was June O'Dea, the pitcher's estranged wife. . . . Old Grover Alexander is piloting a House of David team through the Florida semi-pro circuits . . . Big league scouts blame the lure of golf and tennis for the scarcity of baseball talent . . . While doing his funny act at Opelousas, La., the other night Al Schacht broke a toe.

"Old Fox" Clark Griffith of Washington could step up and take a bow if he wanted to . . . Even when "Schoolboy" Rowe was in his heyday, Griffith gave him four years at the outside . . . Which is just what it took . . . "He'll turn out to be a crooked armer," said Griff.

HIS mates made nine errors behind him but Jack Stanley of St. Martin's high of Detroit earned one of the hardest no-hitters on record by beating Sacred Heart high, 5-4 . . . Sports fans who took the tip of Mr John P Carmichael eminent sports writer of the Chicago Daily News and parleyed Seabiscuit Barney Ross and Joe Louis are wondering what they should do next.

Vie Wednesday In Top Tussle

Dominion, Tappan Teams Meet at Prospect Park.

A game that has all the earmarks of providing a lot of action for Mansfield softball fans is on schedule Wednesday when the Dominion Electrics meet the Tappan Stoves in a Y M C A Commercial league tilt at Prospect park.

The Dominion club is one of only two undefeated teams in the circuit, and the Tappan outfit has lost only one game.

Nicks Pierce, the other unbeaten club, meets the All-State Freights at Emmet field. The Freights are grouped in a four-way tie for fourth place with the Pure Dairy, Hartman Electrics and Miller Dairy.

In the other games the dairy teams meet at Liberty park and the Hardware Mutuals and Sweet Gulf Oils tangle at North park.

City Recreation Baseball Entry Blanks Available

Entry blanks for teams planning to enter juvenile baseball leagues sponsored by the city recreation department may be obtained at the offices on the third floor of the city hall at 1 p. m. Wednesday, Orville Kibler, director of the baseball program, announced today.

The blanks have been made available at this early date to permit managers to check eligibility lists with school principals before the end of the school term, Kibler stated.

Need Pitching Irons In Open

Golfers Work on Short Game at Cherry Hills.

DENVER — (UP) — The emory wheel in Harold Long's pro shop was worked overtime today as America's ace golfers sharpened their implements of links warfare before starting the semi-final day of heavy practice for the National Open golf championship

The 42nd annual open may be decided by the keenness of a pitching iron. This is because the Cherry Hills course where the national will be played on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, placed a premium on straight tee shots So, when a drive is sent off line, the player will find himself in deep rough and the smart way to get out is to use a pitching implement with enough of a razor edge to cut through the Colorado clover.

Frank Walsh, who has played in every open for the past decade, was a good, average example of the player who was sharpening his irons.

"I'm carrying no fewer than three dynamiters." Walsh said today "And to do this I am putting only two woods in my bag. They'll be a driver and a spoon. You watch the other bags and you'll find the boys are carrying three woods at the very most Some won't even use a driver They'll use a brassie or a spoon off the tees and use their irons the rest of the way"

Virtually all of the field of 170 were out on Cherry Hills' fairways and greens today One of those on the sidelines was Johnny Revolta of Chicago who has an infection in his right index finger. He may not be able to play a practice round, but expects to be ready for the title round

Miller's Former Champs to Meet His Present Club

The Hughes-Keenan company sponsored a softball team a few years ago that stacked up as one of the strongest in the state.

Harold C. Miller then an employe of the company, managed the team which won the city Class A championships three years in a row from 1928 to 1930

Miller now an instructor at Senior high school is again managing a softball team this year It is the Schoolmasters club and plans are now being completed for a game between Miller's team of that era and his present team

Arrangements for the game are being made by Paul 'Pete" Grohol a member of the former city champions, and it will be played in the near future

Virtually all of the members of the Hughes-Keenan team are still active in softball The Hughes-Keenan lineup included Ray Hunt John Bush Jim Fullager, Fred Carver Whitey Grigel John Grauer, Kenny Ross, Harry Ross, Bill Ross John Stash Frank Beeler George Hummel Roger Delaney, Eugene Hartnett, Kenneth Turner and Grohol.

Miller's present team is composed entirely of school teachers It won the championship of the Club league two years in a row and was leading last year when the spinal meningitis scare resulted in the suspension of the schedule

THE Goldsmith Clothiers lost their first match of the season at Possum Run yesterday, but retained their grip on first place in The News-Journal Class A golf league.

The Clothiers fell before the Deluxe Cabs, 3 to 2, while the Richland Printers, who were behind by only two points, bowed to the Big Three Beers, 2 to 1, with two points of the battle in doubt because of a postponement.

Tie Printers.

The Matthes Clothiers climbed out of the cellar by turning in a consistent performance to trim the Yuncker Sports, 4 to 1. The defeat shoved the Sports into the basement.

Vin Maleska, who has been playing some of the better golf out at Possum Run this year, fashioned a brilliant 35 to lead the Cabs and win medal honors for the day He defeated Pete Zeides, who rolled out a 38.

Lawrence Deley conquered a 37 to annex the other match point for the Cabbies

Goldsmith's two match wins were scored by Pilot and Vild. They shot 38's to trim Snyder and Dillon.

Frank Cipris was low for the Big Three Beers with a 39, and he took the measure of Pete Linster, who was forced home with a 41.

Goes Extra Holes.

Paul Jesson secured the other match point for the Beers by going three extra holes to defeat Harry Schlegel. Both shot 40's over the regulation distance.

Nick Linster accounted for a 38 to give the Sports their only point in the match with the Matthes team He vanquished Carl Kushin, who had a 39 Pete Tipul Tony Schadek and V H Oberlander hung up the other points for the Clothiers.

Hangs Up Third Ace of Season

The third hole-in-one of the season was registered yesterday by George Schuckman on the short No. 7 at Possum Run. It was the second ace scored on the Washington township layout this year.

Schuckman used a No. 6 iron to enter golf's hall-of-fame, and finished the inside nine with a 41. Witnesses to his feat were his brother, Carl, and two unidentified golfers.

Tribe Opens Crucial Part of Trip Today

Allen Gets Nod for First Game In Fenway Park; Indians Lose Finale at Washington.

BOSTON—(AP)—With a record of four victories and two defeats for the first half of their current road trip, the Cleveland Indians start the crucial portion of the eastern swing today when they face the Boston Red Sox. After three contests here the Tribe will move into New York to tangle with the Yankees

Johnny Allen, temperamental right hander who has won his last seven starts, was Manager Oscar Vitt's pitching selection for the opener against the Red Sox. Fritz Ostermueller was to oppose him.

Cleveland had a full game sliced from its lead yesterday when it dropped a 5 to 4 decision in 11 innings to the Washington Senators as the Yanks downed St. Louis.

Gains Early Lead.

Washington built up a 4 to 1 lead after six innings of play at the expense of Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw who started in the box for the Indians Whitehill worked seven innings and was nicked for seven hits He also issued four bases on balls

Washington got to Whitehill for two runs in the second and another pair in the sixth Cleveland managed to get only one run in the first eight innings off Rookie Kendall Chase, but then broke loose with a great three-run rally in the ninth to knot the score

A double by Sammy Hale, Julius Solters' single and a long fly by Earl Averill gave Cleveland one run in the ninth Hal Trosky then walked and Ken Keltner came through with a smashing double that plated two runners and tied the score.

Chase held the Indians scoreless in the 10th and Joe Krakauskas duplicated the trick in the 11th.

Willis Hudlin, who had pitched sterling relief ball to beat Washington Sunday, was sent to the hill to face the Senators in the 11th but he possessed none of the mound trickery he had displayed the day previous.

Zeke's Hit Wins.

With one out Al Simmons singled and went to second on a wild pitch Jonathan Stone was then walked intentionally and the game ended when Zeke Bonura knocked out a ringing double to plate the winning run

The lone bright spot in the Indians' defeat was the slugging of Averill. He garnered three hits one of which was a double, to lead the club's attack.

Giants Obtain Kampouris From Cincinnati In Attempt to Regain Lead From Bruins

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

THE National league leadership was at stake today as the Giants invaded Chicago and they figured they got just what they needed for the scrap with Alex Kampouris obtained from the Reds yesterday in an even swap for Big Wally Berger, a spare outfielder

Since Burgess Whitehead was laid low by appendicitis this spring, the Terrymen have been sadly afflicted by the lack of a dependable man at the keystone corner. They tried Lou Chiozza and Mickey Haslin But neither had the answer.

Kampouris, although he's been only about a 250 hitter with the Reds, is somewhat more adept on defense, and the Giants figure they can get along pretty well if he'll help hold down the opposition

The Giants tuned up for today's game by pasting the Reds, 11-2, in their farewell game yesterday while the Cubs retained their half-game lead with a 10-8 decision over the Phillies

The Giants stepped out to blast Al Hollingsworth for five runs in the first inning and piled up 15 blows including Mel Ott's tenth homer, to end a six-game losing streak

The Cubs trying to get along without using any first-run pitchers, were hard pressed to hold off the Phils as Al Epperly weakened after being given a 3-0 lead in the first inning. Charley Root went out in the seventh and Jack Russell was clubbed hard

Jimmie Foxx paced the Boston Red Sox in a come-back that enabled them to beat out Detroit, 8-7, after trailing by five runs in the seventh. Foxx clubbed his 14th homer, drove in three other counters and finally scored the winning run.

The Senators had to go 11 innings but they finally checked the Cleveland Indians' progress 5 to 4 The defeat cut Cleveland's American league lead to three games as the New York Yankees after spotting the St. Louis Browns five runs in the fourth, came back to win out, 6-5, on Joe DiMaggio's homer in the seventh and a double by Bill Knickerbocker and single by Frank Crosetti in the eighth.

Roy Henshaw pitched six-hit ball to beat the Boston Bees, 11-2 He was aided by a six-run fifth inning and homers by Don Padgett, Don Gutteridge and Joe Medwick.

For the second straight day, Brooklyn had one big inning and beat Pittsburgh, 9-4 scoring seven runs on as many hits in the first inning. The Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics took a day off after a Sunday doubleheader.

North, Johns Parks Triumph In Opening City Loop Tilts

Northerners Take Measure of Prospect Park, 6-5; Liberty Park Team Defeated, 9-8.

NORTH PARK softballers inaugurated their City Class A league season in an auspicious manner yesterday, but they had to go 11 innings to do it.

The North Parkmen defeated Prospect park, 6 to 5, on the losers' field.

Tie It Up in Eighth.

The Northerners had what appeared to be a winning lead as they went into the eighth inning, but the Prospecters refused to admit defeat and tallied four times in the last half of the stanza

Neither team threatened seriously in the ninth or tenth, but the North athletes put over a run in the first of the 11th that the Prospect boys could not match.

Prospect took the first lead with a run in the opening inning, but the visitors came back with three in the second to take an advantage that the losers never were able to overcome.

North Lake added another in the sixth and its fourth run in the first of the eighth.

Garver was on the mound for North Park, and scattered the eight hits he permitted in fine fashion. He struck out only two, but had fairly good control as he issued three passes.

Ted Frisbee was his mound opponent, and he gave up 12 hits in the thrilling tilt He set four down via the strike out route and handed out five walks.

Lead Attack.

Balbaugh, Henrich, Fogel and Geiger collected a pair of safeties to set the pace on the attack for the winners. Geiger's hits included a home run and double.

B. Valentine was the batting leader for the Prospectors, obtaining three of the eight hits Judy and Stickler helped the losers with circuit clouts.

Tunney Shows Joe How to Duck

DETROIT —(AP)— John Roxborough, co-manager of Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, said here last night that former Champion Gene Tunney recently worked out with Louis and that another workout was planned.

Roxborough, here on business, said that "Tunney spent a few hours with Joe up at Lafayetteville, N. Y., last week, and they got along well. "He was showing Joe how to avoid being hit with a right hand," Roxborough said.

New Bomber To Face Max In Title Go

Louis Works Hard as He Prepares for German.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The change that has come over Joe Louis in the two years since his first unfortunate encounter with Max Schmeling's right fist is exemplified in his training quarters at Pompton Lakes, N. J.

Compared to the hotspot at Lakewood where he trained, more or less, the other time, Joe's present retreat in preparation for June 22 is a cross between an old folks' home and a monastery garden.

Enclose Home.

They've even installed a green fence around the old colonial home where the champ gets his slumber, and after about 10 o'clock of an evening there isn't a sound to break the stillness except the deep, resonant snoring of well-fed sparring partners.

Joe, the boy who grew older, spends much of his spare time rowing a heavy boat about the lake at his back door, and perhaps even meditating.

Veterans of the Lakewood camp, back in the days when Joe was the brownest bomber of them all, recall it fondly as one of the gayest, most successful fish frys ever held in New Jersey. Joe was a pouting immortal riding a merry-go-round.

No thoughts of Schmeling, the old man training somewhere else, were permitted to intrude upon the hilarity of Lakewood. Some who stayed around long enough to grasp the real spirit of the carnival forgot completely who it was that Louis was getting ready to bop over.

Joe went through the motions of training, but he devoted most of his time to playing golf, shaking hands with the hero-worshippers and listening to the music. He made personal appearances at sandlot ball games to improve his wind and stamina.

The mere mention of Lakewood now causes the entire Louis entourage to wince violently. It's something they would rather forget.

He'll Be Ready.

This time, there can be slight doubt, Louis will face Max in as near perfect condition as a man can get Before he completes his training he will have boxed at least 90 rounds with the toughest lot of sparring partners you ever looked at

All of them are encouraged, even ordered, to throw right-hand wallops at Joe's jaw, and he already has absorbed a thousand or so.

There is no inclination here to try to name the winner at this stage of the game, but you may be certain that the Louis who climbs through the ropes two weeks from Wednesday night will be a better man in every respect than the one Schmeling splattered in 1936.

Schmeling Wants Jacobs Reinstated

SPECULATOR, N. Y.—(UP)—Max Schmeling, who meets the heavyweight champion, Joe Louis, in a title fight June 22, appealed to the New York state boxing commission today to reinstate as a second, Joe Jacobs, who was instrumental in helping him win the championship eight years ago.

The German said that if necessary he would go before Commission Chairman John J. Phelan and ask that the suspension of Jacobs be lifted. It was understood that if the appeal was denied Schmeling would ask Gov. Herbert Lehman to overrule the commission. Jacobs was suspended because of a disagreement with the commission over the training methods of Tony Galento, whom he pilots.

WALL STREET PLEASED WITH IOWA PRIMARY

Traders Skeptical, However, as Filibuster Threatens Wage-Hour Bill.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Coppers led a quiet and selective forward move in today's stock market.

Speculative influences apparently were conflicting. Wall Street seemed pleased by the outcome of the Iowa primaries but, on the other hand, threats of a fillibuster over the wage-hour bill and possible delay in the adjournment of congress made for indecision among buyers.

Coppers were aided by another lift in the export price for this metal, along with higher scrap and futures quotations. Bonds and commodities exhibited indefinite trends.

While holders of steel shares were moderately cheered by signs of a flattening out of the downward curve in mill operations, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported output of open hearth and Bessemer ingots in may totalled 1,806,805 gross tons, the lowest since February.

Trade apathy was stressed further by the condition statement of 101 reserve member banks for the week ended June 1, disclosing a decrease of $39,000,000 in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans.

TOWNSHIP EYES EXTRA LEVY TO PAY RELIEF BILL

Lutz Confers With Attorney General on Legality of Madison Plan.

Madison township joined the city of Mansfield today in its search for relief funds, and, like the city, looked to a township tax levy as the possible answer.

Harold T. Lutz, assistant county prosecutor, was in Columbus today to confer with Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy on the legality of the township submitting its own levy to voters outside Mansfield.

Meanwhile, city council is expected to take action tonight on Mayor C. M. Hunter's proposal for a two-mill levy to provide city relief funds for two years.

Need $45,000.

Township trustees, who said they would need $45,000 to pay relief bills for the rest of 1938, met with County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe and Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott late yesterday and were told that no action could be taken to place the proposed levy before the voters until the attorney general's office has ruled on the legality of the proposal.

County and township officials were pessimistic about the chances for a favorable decision, however, since Mansfield is a division of Madison township and it is doubtful if the two can separate for the purpose of voting tax levies.

Under the municipal code, the city has authority to vote its own operating levy, and relief is considered a part of the general operating cost, Marriott said.

W. F. Beam, a trustee, pointed out that the township has used all of a $10,000 fund recently obtained on a transfer from the road and bridge fund, and must take immediate action to raise money from another source.

REVENUES UP

Richland county's financial balance moved up $3,708 from $537,829 on May 1 to $541,537 on June 1, according to the monthly financial statement of County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

During the month, the county's general fund balance increased $14,375, with the total June 1 set at $24,517. Receipts in the general fund for the month amounted to $37,065 and disbursements were $22,690, the report shows.

Undivided taxes are listed at $27,853. The total includes $23,-020 in Mansfield conservancy tax receipts: $3,290 in last half personal classified taxes; $1,440 in last half general personal tax, and $103 in delinquent personal tax collections.

JAPAN RENEWS CANTON RAIDS

Toll of Dead, Injured Boosted to 7,500 as Result of New Plane Attacks.

ure for all the raids. Estimates of 2,500 killed were considered conservative. There was no way of telling how many were injured, but the figure 5,000 was mentioned frequently.

The new raids came as representatives of world powers inspected the bomb-torn city to obtain evidence for new diplomatic protests to Japan against the bombings of civilian populations.

France Adopts New Frontier Policy.

PARIS — (U.P.) — France now regards the invasion of airplanes from Spain as a military, not a diplomatic problem and the solution has been left with the general staff, a government spokesman said today.

"The government regards as useless further protests to authorities of either side in the Spanish civil war," said the spokesman, "as there is no hope of practical results to avoid further violation of the French frontier.

Hereafter it is a military, not a diplomatic problem. The solution depends on the general staff which has taken all necessary dispositions.

"The government is calmly determined not to tolerate new violations.

"The presence of Premier Edouard Daladier on the frontier indicated the importance which France attaches to these violations."

Premier Edouard Daladier announced that he had taken measures to prevent a repetition of bombing raids on the French side of the Pyrenees frontier.

Fifteen new anti-aircraft guns were dispatched to the Spanish frontier to fight off any foreign airplanes which crossed the border into France. The guns were manned by a special force of infantry who had orders to shoot down invading planes, in co-operation with reinforced air force squadrons.

URGES TAX LAW TO FINANCE NEW FARM PROGRAM

Bankhead Favors Enactment of New Levies Next Year for Added Subsidies.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Enactment of a new tax bill in the next session of congress to finance an expanded farm program was urged today by Speaker Bankhead as congress veered rapidly toward a minimum price plan for major farm commodities.

A long forward step toward government guarantee of parity prices may be taken by house acceptance of a senate amendment to the spend-and-lend bill appropriating $212,000,000 for added subsidies to farmers.

"I am hopeful that congress in the next session will provide for proper financing of the farm program through the levying of additional taxes," said Speaker Bankhead.

Favors Processing Tax.

A drive will be made for the imposition of processing taxes, which were levied under the old AAA, said Rep. Ford (D) of Mississippi.

Under the new farm law enacted by congress this session, parity payments to farmers who co-operate in the crop reduction program were provided whenever congress made funds available.

In appropriating $212,000,000, the senate provided for payment of 10 cents a bushel on wheat, five cents a bushel on corn and two cents a pound on cotton. This would be in addition to soil conservation payments amounting to $500,000,000.

The parity price, which varies, is a price which will give the farmer the same buying power he had between 1909 and 1914.

Even with the appropriation of $21,000,000 congressional farm experts said, parity cannot be reached this year. Parity is approximately $1.16 a bushel for wheat, 84 cents for corn and 16 cents a pound for cotton.

Farmers, it is estimated, may receive a total of 82 cents a bushel this year from the sale price of wheat, the soil conservation payment and the parity subsidy carried in the relief-recovery bill.

Annual appropriations of from $750,000,000 to $1,500,000,000, under conditions of the last few years, would be necessary to assure farmers minimum prices, some members said.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — President Roosevelt today signed an executive order extending the life of the national emergency council, until June 30, 1939.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

I WATCHED the evening come. The sun, like a ball of fire, hid behind a bank of clouds before it reached the top of the western hills. To the south a plowman unhitched his heavy team and drove them to the barn. There they stood, impatiently, by the barnyard gate, waiting to be unharnessed and fed.

A little boy drove the cattle from the pasture. The mothers lowed, and hurried forward to feed their hungry calves.

I saw the last single line of crows fly across the open valley without a sound, and reach their place of rest in a hilly, wooded thicket. One by one, the sheep, by the old strawshed, chose a grassy bed and lay down for the night. The lambs, not ready yet for rest, gamboled about in the growing twilight.

The moon, a full half disk, rode through the broken clouds, like a boat across the waves. It shone bright from an open space, then concealed itself for a little, behind a heavier cloud. Finally it reached a broad open space and sailed silently across a starry sea of blue. An owl spoke from the deep woods.

To the east I heard the rumble of a train . . . its shrill whistle came muffled to my ears, for the wind was from the west. Some dogs barked, apparently disturbed by the bright moonlight, and others answered from across the valley.

I felt the dampness of the evening air rise from the grassy fields, full of the fragrance of blooming wheat, and the perfume of clover meadows. The delicate breath of lacy blackberry blossoms came to me from along an old rail fence.

One by one the farmers' lamps were blown out and the neighborhood settled down to peaceful slumber. I love this quiet rest "that knits the raveled sleeve of care," and renews my strength for the dawning of another morning.

Bucyrus School Janitor For 43 Years Quits Post

BUCYRUS—With the close of school Tuesday afternoon, Charles Flocken, janitor at Norton school for 43 years, put away his broom and turned in his keys in retirement.

"Charlie," as he is affectionately known to hundreds of former pupils who have passed through the school, started his duties at Norton school in 1895, soon after the building was constructed, and has "grown up" with the school.

Besides being a haven of refuge when the "big boys" would get too rough, Charlie was always in demand by the youngsters to demonstrate his magic tricks, of which he had a wealth. It is doubtful if there is one person, who at one time was a pupil in Norton school, has not watched Charlie make a penny disappear or eat a peanut and later produce it unbroken.

As a tribute to Mr. Flocken, former pupils and teachers of the school presented the retiring officer with a lounge chair and a bouquet of ribbons interspersed with 43 crisp new one dollar bills at a homecoming held at the school.

Remy and son, Albert, who left Saturday for a trip to California, were honor guests for a dinner gathering at the home of Mrs. Remy's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Adams, North Pearl street, Friday evening when they entertained a group of relatives and friends.

The Remy family expects to visit the former's brother, Clayton Remy, and family, in San Marino, Calif., and will stop at various places of interest enroute.

CRISIS EASED

Cleveland Gets $60,000 for Relief; No Funds Left.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—An adjustment by which Cleveland received $60,000 through the federal government's WPA delayed today the long-threatened closing of the city's relief stations.

After the city council failed last night for the second successive week to act in the lingering relief crisis, Mayor Harold H. Burton announced that the $60,000 represented commitments on certain projects of which the city had been relieved, thus making the money available from the general fund.

"This is all the money in sight from any source," said Burton. "We had been conferring with the WPA for some time in an effort to obtain the adjustments. That, we are told, is the maximum we can expect.

SCIENCE CHURCH HEARS REPORT

Directors at Annual Meeting Warn Nations 'Brought Force by Force.'

BOSTON, Mass.—A warning to nations "whose governments have been conceived largely in selfish ambition and brought forth by human force" was issued here yesterday at the annual meeting of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, The Mother Church, by The Christian Science board of directors who declared the lessons of history show such governing bodies to be "of few days and full of trouble."

Reports disclosed continued growth of the Christian Science movement, increasingly higher standards for authorized periodicals, and a larger number of requests from groups of non-Scientists for representative Christian Scientists to address them.

Election of Ralph Hastings Knapp, C. S., of Needham, Mass., as president of the Mother church was announced. He succeeds Judge Clifford P. Smith of Newton, Mass., Edward L. Ripley of Brookline and Ezra W. Palmer of Marshfield, were re-elected treasurer and clerk, respectively. The president is elected by the Christian Science board of directors to serve for one year. His duty is to be presiding officer at the annual meeting.

Knapp is a son of Ira O. Knapp and Flavia S. Knapp, two of the 12 called upon by Mrs. Eddy to reorganize the Christian Science church in September, 1892. He has served First Church of Christ, Scientist, Needham, Mass., as reader, director and president. He is on the teaching faculty of Mechanic Arts (Technical) High school in Boston.

Palmer, reading the statement from the directors, reported that the Mother church has grown substantially in numbers during the past year; is united, harmonious, and without debt.

WINS AT LOG BUCKING

SCOTIA, Cal.—(U.P.)—A few of the reasons why Charlie Buck won the log-bucking championship of the California redwoods by sawing through a 32-inch redwood log in 2 minutes 49.4 seconds are that he weighs 263 pounds and stands 6 feet 6 in his stocking feet. He took 304 strokes with the saw to sever the log.

CHAPTER XXIII

"I'm afraid it was something like that dear. Muriel will tell us later. I don't want her to try just now. But that is what upset her so. She says that she was angry, that she told Mr. Wardlaw what she thought of him and she's sure she must have been terribly rude. I hope she was. That's right, isn't it, darling?"

* * *

Muriel nodded. Larry caught at her hand, wet handkerchief and all, pressed a sisterly kiss on the white knuckles.

"That's my old pal," she murmured. "I wish I could have heard it, that's all. Never mind, now. Pull yourself together. It wasn't worth shedding tears over Rommy didn't say, did he, whether anybody else...."

She hesitated painfully. A suppressed sob was the only answer to her unfinished question. Larry gave Muriel's hand a little squeeze as she rose from her stool.

"I get it," she said evenly. "It's all right."

When Larry appeared the following morning, she exhibited an air of calm indifference that gave no hint of a sleepless night, and attitude that worried Mrs. Layne afresh. The latter had insisted upon Muriel's returning before supper, that she might recover from the afternoon's experience.

Larry had made no move to discuss the matter and her mother deemed it best to ask no questions. Now, bustling in from the kitchen with the coffeepot in her hand, she inquired with assumed cheerfulness:

"Do you know if Muriel is awake? I was hoping she would sleep late this morning."

"She's up. I was just talking to her. Her eyes look like two burnt holes in a blanket, but she says she's all right."

"Did she tell you anything . . . more, Larry?"

"No, Mums, and she isn't going to. I don't care to hear any of the sordid details."

"I still can't understand it," Mrs. Layne declared. "What are you going to do about it, dear? I scarcely know how to advise you."

"It's already done, Mums. Rather simple. I think this family has taken as much as it has to from . . . the Norwood Mills. I have written a short sweet note to Mr. Odell, asking him to park his car elsewhere and stay parked."

"But, Larry, it's just possible. . ."

"I know, Mums. Anything seems to be possible these days. But that's one thing I don't want to hear about and I won't talk about it. The note is written and he's going to get it as quickly as possible . . . before something else happens."

"I see," Mrs. Layne sighed. "Perhaps that is best. You might have sent it by Griff, if you had thought."

"No thanks. Somebody in the office would have gotten hold of it and guessed. You didn't say anything to Griff, did you?"

"Of course not, dear."

"That's best. You know he still has a job at the mill . . . I wish I could figure some way to get that note delivered in a hurry. It's got me stopped."

"What has?" asked Muriel, who had entered the dining-room.

"I've just written a note to a gentleman and I don't know how to get it to him right away. I'm not anxious to have it pawed over at the office and plenty of the girls know my handwriting."

"Perhaps I can help you," her sister offered quietly. "I am going over to the school this morning to meet some pupils. If you want me to, I can address an envelope on the office machine and enclose your note. We are so near the postoffice I can find some way to have it mailed for the afternoon delivery. One of the children perhaps."

"Maybe that would be best," Larry agreed. "Only be sure you pick out some kid that's plenty dumb."

So it happened, some hours later, that Clayton Odell found himself staring curiously at an envelope that found its way to his desk. "Board of Education," he murmured. "And 'personal.' Must be little Johnnie has been playing hooky or not doing his homework." The mystery deepened when he tore it open and found a smaller envelope within, addressed in feminine handwriting. It was not familiar, but he felt a little thrill of anticipation as he guessed the identity of the sender. A correspondence card bearing a few lines.

"Dear Mr. Odell:

After thinking it all over carefully, I believe it would be best for us to discontinue our acquaintance. Please accept this decision as final. With regrets

Sincerely,
Hiliary Layne."

Clay read it with a deepening frown, read it a second time. It sounded too stilted, somehow, for Larry to have written.

There was no way for him to know that it was one of a dozen notes that she had penned that morning. Some written in a blaze of girlish anger. Others through a mist of tears.

Clay Odell's first reaction to his dismissal was bewilderment, rather than any feeling of hurt or resentment. What had he done to draw down that curt decision? The swiftness of his falling in love with Larry had made him too impetuous. It probably had And yet, on the other hand, she had not indicated that his blunt avowal was distasteful to her. He didn't expect that she would respond to his love at once. He was not sure that he would have wished her to. It wasn't like the Larry he thought he knew to yield her heart hastily. It seemed as if something must have happened to make her take such a step. But nothing had happened. That much was clear.

His first impulse was to go at once to her house, demand to see her and insist upon an explanation. More sober reflection, however, told him that a gentleman couldn't very well follow that course in the face of so positive a desire to avoid further meetings. Queer that it was not his own pride that felt wounded; it was the pride he had for his love. It was his first love, and, even now, he was conscious that he wanted it to be his last. He was only beginning to realize how proud he was of it.

Well . . . Nothing to do but wait. There must be some sort of an answer. Fate seemed to be conspiring to keep him in Norwood. With Larry out of the picture, there probably was no good reason why he shouldn't stay and clean up his indebtedness to his uncle. The old gentleman would indulge in one of his rare smiles, if he knew about this It was playing right into his hands.

Wilbur Grant!

The name flashed into Clay's consciousness from nowhere. Could that be the answer? Was it just possible that Larry had cared for the fellow, more than she knew perhaps? Had Wilbur's devotion assumed a more familiar and dependable aspect, now that Larry had been "thinking it all over carefully"? Maybe Mr. Grant's raise had given him renewed courage for the future and once more he was urging Larry to share it with him.

As if in answer to that conclusion, the door opened quietly from the adjoining private room and a solution limped in with the aid of a cane. Mr. Wardlaw's demeanor was so amiable that his nephew regarded him with a surprise that bordered upon suspicion There was something up and Romulus proceeded to prove it by injecting a note of near heartiness into his harsh voice.

"Clayton, my boy," he began, "I've been doing a lot of thinking the past few hours and I hope you have. My conclusion is that you and I have both been indulging in a lot of childish bickering instead of acting like grown men. I'm ready to forget it. After all, we have no serious difference in our viewpoints and both of us are working for the same end."

Clayton said nothing His uncle tapped the edge of the desk with a folded paper and continued:

"I know, better than you do, how much an assured future counts It doubles a man's incentive to know that his efforts are going to be repaid. It should. For that reason, I have decided to double your monthly salary under our working agreement. In addition, I am giving you a percentage of the net profits. A small percentage, to be sure, but it will be increased as time goes on. I hope. It is the only change I propose. You will assume complete charge of the accounting end and I will handle the manufacturing, the same as I have Later, I will expect you to relieve me of much of that detail as you become more familiar with operations. I'll be greatly surprised if that doesn't appeal to you."

"It's very generous."

"I don't mean it that way at all. It's a matter of business that should benefit us both. I have drawn it up here in a single paragraph that can be attached to our other agreement." Romulus opened the paper he held and spread it on the desk. "If you will put your name under mine," he added blandly, "that is all that is necessary."

"And, if I sign," Clay supplemented without any show of enthusiasm, "it rather automatically cancels the notice I gave you, I suppose."

"Nonsense! You wouldn't have gone through with that. You have too much good sense. And if you persist in paying back what I have already invested in you, here's your chance. But I'm not asking you to. If I had lost, I was the one who gambled. Well?"

"A second. I'll read it, if you don't mind."

"I expected you to, naturally."

* * *

Clay was silent for a moment after he read the new clause. Then, with a shrug of his shoulders, he reached for a pen. "After all," he remarked indifferently, And wrote his name.

"Now, you're being sensible," Romulus approved. He folded the paper hastily and put it in his pocket. "I'll attach it," he explained. "Then everything will be in order. I've one more letter I want to write. I'll see you at dinner, Clayton."

Clay sat motionless in his chair after the door closed on his uncle. Nothing seemed to matter, not even the fact that he had mortgaged his future after a fashion. It was the easiest way out and it couldn't hurt anyone except himself. In a way, it would be a relief not to worry any longer with a problem that at times had become almost unbearable. A sudden restlessness seized him and he reached for his hat.

It was an unexpected ordeal to walk through the length of the outer office.

Clay found himself instinctively wanting to cast his glance in the direction of the files where he had been wont to see Larry's shining hair. He looked straight ahead, knowing that that dumpy Case girl would send him a smile.

The mill offered a little relief. Clay never tired of watching the intricate machines at their work of knitting, the operators with their skilled hands and watchful eyes, the hum and the clatter of it all. He strolled along one of the aisles, pausing now and then to watch some particular activity, always giving a friendly nod and smile to any worker whose glance he met.

He had almost reached the end of the long room when he chanced to see Wilbur Grant emerging from behind a near-by machine with a wrench in his hand. Clay nodded in passing and was much surprised when Grant touched his arm with a grimy hand, still more so when the machinist bent his head close to Clay's and spoke above the uproar.

"Could I speak to you a minute, Mr. Odell? Outside, where there ain't so much noise?"

Clay glanced down at the heavy wrench in Wilbur's hand. A glint of amusement showed in his eyes.

"I'll take a chance," he responded, raising his voice. He turned and led the way to a rear outer door.

In the comparative quiet of the out-of-doors, Wilbur Grant appeared suddenly self-conscious as he looked into Clay Odell's inquiring eyes.

"Maybe I shouldn't speak to you about this," he began, in his slow, methodical manner, "but I thought I might, seeing that you're a sort of boss around here, now, and you seem pretty fair to everybody."

"I try to be," Clay answered pleasantly. "What's on your mind, Grant?"

"Well, we all know that business is bad in a way and we wouldn't be surprised to see the mill lay off anybody it could spare. But it don't seem exactly square to start with just one man, especially when he's been here longer than a lot of others and seemed to be getting along good."

"You don't mean you've been discharged?" Clay asked in genuine surprise.

"No. Not me, Mr. Odell. But young Griff Layne was fired last night."

"I hadn't heard that. Are you sure?"

There's No Lack of Variety at Boston Market

The well filled shelves and counters at the Boston Cash Market, (shown above) 228 North Main street, indicate one thing—there's no lack of variety in this thriving store. Everything in the grocery line is offered, as well as a complete selection of fresh and smoked meats. In addition, the market is one of the few in this section offering selected European merchandise, including imported olives, sardines, cheese, olive oil and similar products.

Speaking of Pet Peeves, Here's One

Everybody has a pet peeve of some sort or another. Some men will not smoke a cigar unless it is soft. Some women detest certain soap odors. Some children refuse breakfast foods that their parents believe necessary for health. All of us have a pet peeve. One of the recent peeves uncovered was developed from a series of interviews with 11,207 families who were asked questions about their homes, and 3,355 of these home owners said that their pet peeve was "can't heat rooms evenly."

Those who have spent any of their lives on farms know of some of the difficulties of heating a farm home evenly when the temperature is around zero outside. Many apartment buildings have certain rooms that never seem to heat evenly and many private homes, because of poor heating installations, can be placed in the same category.

Since the advent of air conditioning in theaters, restaurants, hotels, sleeping cars, there has come a new understanding of why this pet peeve is so common. Heating engineers have proven that it is impossible to heat a house evenly unless there is a constant intake of warm air and a constant outtake of cold air. These engineers have proven that the air in every room should be changed three or four times an hour. It should be kept moving and to do this most heating plants require slight changes. Yet, such a heating system is possible in practically every home, regardless of its cost or size.

The Charles Hoffman company, 106 North Walnut street, co-operating with the Williamson Heater company, has recently installed a free heating check-up service that is now being offered to every family in this community.

Factory engineers co-operating with their local representative, the Hoffman company, make a complete examination of any home and prescribe for it without obligation.

A patent has been issued for an antiseptic paint which keeps walls sterile at all times. The paint slowly gives off a vapor deadly to germs.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO CONSIDER YOUR CAR HAS A 'HUMAN' SIDE?

A motor car is amazingly like a human being. If one part is neglected and doesn't work properly, all the other contributing parts may be affected, with the result that your car won't run in the most satisfactory and economical manner.

The chassis or frame of your car is a steel foundation, strongly reinforced at every point. It is like the bone structure or skeleton of your body. It must stand all the strain and stress you give it: roaring around corners and sharp curves, bumping over rugged roads, hurtling through mud, slush, ice, sand or whatever the conditions may be—carrying you safely and silently on its back: thousands of pounds which must travel speedily and comfortably.

The joints on the axles of your car—all joints, in fact—are surprisingly like the joints of your own body. Nature puts them in man to permit easy movement of limbs and torso. When they become stiff and unruly, they cannot function properly. This condition is called arthritis. It may truthfully be said that a car, too, can suffer from this malady. So it is highly important that both the joints of the human body and your car be properly cared for and kept free from friction.

The oil circulation of the motor car can be compared to the blood circulation of the human being. Dilution or sediment in your oil may be likened to any condition in the blood stream which results in a change in the constituents of the blood, such as the corpuscles or cells. Thus if the condition of your oil is not right at all times and in all temperatures, your car will certainly complain in audible measures; it will reach the danger point and, if further neglected, may develop really serious trouble. Keep the blood stream in your car right—and avoid high blood pressure.

In your automobile the electrical system is precisely like your own nervous system: those countless, delicate, fibrous "wires" that carry your "feelings" from the seat of your brain to the soles of your feet. You press your foot down on your starter, an electrical flash instantly travels to your battery and to your spark plugs. Your engine turns over and catches, humming silently, and at your command. Have you ever known a person whose nerves were constantly "on edge"? If you have, you know that such a person cannot possibly be entirely normal in his reflexes and reactions. A neglected electrical system in an automobile does the same thing. The car gets "nervous" and loses stamina; it doesn't perform normally.

Does a car "see?" Certainly it does. Just as the two eyes in your head look out upon the world and advise you constantly, so the two headlights of your car provide the "vision" necessary for you to proceed. When your eyes get a bit dim or out of focus, you consult an eye specialist. Treat the lights of your car as considerately and eliminate poor-visioned driving.

Now something about "heart trouble" in your car. Yes, an automobile can have attacks of this serious ailment. The carburetor may properly be termed the heart of the motor car, pumping the life-giving fluid to the entire system; supplying the food and fuel; regulating the "flow" in correct proportions.

This apt comparison between the automobile and the human has been pictured by E. S. Willard, district manager of the Pure Oil company. He contends that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure and that the Bumper-to-Bumper service featured by Pure Oil stations in this locality will go far toward insuring long life and a healthy one for any car.

Although Pure Oil station men do not undertake mechanical repairs, their expert lubrication service, according to the scientific Pure Oil Chek-Chart, will safeguard the vital working parts of your car. They are also equipped to service and supply batteries, tires, and a complete line of accessories.

MODEL VILLAGE IN MILWAUKEE GETS TENANTS

First 10 of 572 Families Move Into Low-Cost Homes Built by Government.

(By United Press)

MILWAUKEE — Greendale, model low-cost housing village constructed by the Federal Farm Security administration, was opened to tenants today as 10 of the 572 families who will occupy it moved in.

More than 30 families have been certified for tenancy in the $10,000,000 Greenbelt town, but only 10 were able to move in on the first day. Others being detained by rental agreements in their old homes.

Investigators continued to pore tenancy, attempting to choose over the 3,000 applications for decent housing and incomes those qualified on the basis of need under $2,000.

The 10 families found their model village only partly completed. The housing and 72 farm units are finished and ready to be occupied, but the business street still has the appearance of a "boom" town with buildings mushrooming up on every side.

School Not Ready.

The community building, which will house the school and village recreation hall, is completed, but there will be no school until next fall.

Some of the village stores will be open for business soon, but the movie house, the village garage, bus terminal and postoffice, tavern and restaurant will not be completed for another six months.

Even without these conveniences, though, the first families were overjoyed to get into their new homes. Especially happy were those families with children, and many of them have from one to four.

Applications from the first families selected as tenants showed the following reasons for wanting to move to Greendale

A couple with three young children living in a small apartment with stove heat. The floors were too cold for the baby to creep on them. The children had colds continually because of the poorly heated, dark and unventilated rooms.

Homes Not Modern.

Another couple with three children living in a small over-crowded house. Their kitchen was in the attic and the bathroom was the only source of water.

A couple with two children living in the commercial district of Milwaukee. The small flat was inadequately heated and the basement infested with rats.

A couple with two children, one 8 and the other 10. The brother and sister shared one bedroom and the parents slept in the living room. The home was situated on a busy street and there was no place for the children to play.

A childless couple living in one furnished room and makeshift kitchen partitioned off of part of the attic. A kerosene stove was used to cook the meals and the bathroom was shared with two other families.

Life Begins

Frieda Trost (above) went to prison 26 years ago for the poison slaying of her husband. She was released from prison at Muncy, Pa., after a quarter of a century, and will begin life again with the $46.83 she has saved in prison.

TWO SENTENCED TO STATE PEN

Shelby, Bellville Men Plead Guilty to Indictments, Get Prison Terms.

Two Richland countians were under Ohio penitentiary sentences today after pleading guilty before Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court to indictments returned by the April term grand jury.

Donald Arnold, 31, of near Shelby was given a three to 20 year sentence when he changed his plea to guilty to an indictment charging he criminally assaulted a Shelby woman. Arnold, who had previously been cited on a similar charge, was to have gone on trial today before the petit jury.

On his plea of guilty to charges of issuing checks without funds, Levi Young, 53, Bellville, was sentenced to one to three years in the penitentiary. Young had issued more than a dozen checks in small amounts on the Farmers Bank at Bellville without funds to cover them, officers said.

He was on probation in Morgan county on a bad check conviction, but authorities decided to dispose of his case in his home county, since he pleaded guilty to the indictment.

BENEFITS DUE

Security Board Says Payments Awaiting Some.

Administrators and executors of estates today were advised by the Social Security board to ascertain whether the estate is entitled to a lump sum payment from the federal government in accordance with the old-age insurance provisions of the Social Security act.

R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield district office of the board, said that a large number of death claims have been filed long after the estates have been closed, because administrators and executors of the estates of deceased wage earners were unaware of the accrued benefits due, and failed to file applications during the process of administration.

The security board certifies to the United States Treasury the payment of 3½ per cent of wages earned by a deceased wage-earner to his nearest relative or estate. The wages must have been earned in covered employment since Jan. 1, 1937. Lump-sum payments in the same percentage are also being paid to wage earners who reach the age of 65.

DRIVING RIGHTS OF 2 SUSPENDED

Court Also Fines Autoists $10, Costs Each for Speeding.

Two week-end traffic offenders who pleaded guilty to speeding in municipal court yesterday had their driving rights suspended in addition to being fined.

Lawrence Wuthrick, 20, of R. D. Mansfield, and Harper Au, 176 Benton street, both were assessed $10 and costs when they pleaded guilty to charges of careless and reckless driving. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended Wuthrick's operator's permit for 60 days and Au's license for 30 days.

The pair was arrested Sunday afternoon by police who testified that they were racing on West Fourth street at a speed of 50 miles an hour and were cutting in and out of traffic.

Among the 57 seniors who will receive degrees at the 110th annual commencement at Kenyon college Monday, June 13, will be Merrill W. Manz, jr., Woodland road, and John H. Tappan, Woodland road.

Both students will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree. Manz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill W. Manz, sr., and Tappan is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Tappan.

Richard G. Taylor, 66 Parkwood boulevard, will be among 630 seniors to be graduated from Michigan State college, East Lansing, at commencement exercises Monday, June 13. Taylor will receive a degree in forestry. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Taylor.

Also to receive degrees at Kenyon are six students from Mt. Vernon. They are Cecil Durbin, Harold Fleming, Henry Sebach, Richard Shorkey, Richard Veatch, and Robert Rollins.

MOUSE IN CAR

Woman Leaps Out, Cyclist Comes To Rescue.

LONDON—(AP)—A cyclist calmly pedaling to work was startled when a red sedan suddenly pulled up in front of him and skidded to a stop.

His heart almost stopped beating when a woman jumped out, her face white with terror, and pointed mutely to something inside the car.

At first he could not see anything. Then it caught his eye. Reaching in, he pulled out a mouse.

TUESDAY, JUNE 7, 1938.

Next comes Father's day—June 19—in case Father wishes to start saving up for it.

It is reported that drunken drivers "were fewer in 1937"—and they would continue to be fewer each Monday morning, except for the youthful recruits.

It is revealed that the recent Irish sweepstakes took $6,800,000 from American ticket buyers and paid back $3,920,000 in prizes—but the losers probably figure it was for a good cause.

Time to Get Together.

A MEETING of minds on public problems seems to be growing nearer. It is true that the shouting lefters and the berating righters are still making a great deal of noise and pouring into the atmosphere a large volume of foolishness and bitterness.

But sounder heads in the Republican party are quite willing to state that the difficulties under which America now tries to function are greater than any one man can solve or than the partisan ideas of any one political group can encompass. The sounder heads among the Democrats and the various groups of leftist parties seem willing to admit the same thing.

In other words, if America is to pull itself out of permanent trouble into the place of comfort and usefulness which all her people need, no more time and energy dare be wasted on idle recrimination. It's a time for pulling together—a time for using thought on constructive phases of the common life.

Mansfield Needs Building Code

WHATEVER has stood in the way of formulating and enacting an adequate building code for Mansfield should be cleared up without further delay and action taken.

Mansfield's past sad experiences with jerry-built junk, foisted on unsuspecting buyers as well-constructed homes, should be sufficient to show the need of guarding against repetition of such racketeering methods by unscrupulous, irresponsible or incompetent contractors.

Unless erected in conformity to a definite code, and under careful supervision, residential building offers numerous opportunities for concealed shoddiness that cannot be readily detected after completion.

Home ownership so frequently involves years of saving that there should be no shirking of the community obligation to protect the interests of builders and buyers by means of a building code similar to those in other Ohio cities of Mansfield's size.

Guide to Traffic Safety.

POLICE departments undertaking the vitally important problem of traffic engineering, now have a guide to standard procedure. A new handbook, entitled "Traffic Engineering and the Police," has been published jointly by the national conservation bureau and the safety division of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Its publication rounds out another section of the bureau's comprehensive traffic control program.

Much of the handbook is devoted to the use of traffic engineering methods to reduce hazard at accident-prone locations—those spots in a community where accidents occur most frequently. An exhaustive system for analyzing danger spots is explained, and the correct use of traffic engineering devices and methods to remove hazards is detailed.

Other sections of the handbook deal with stop signs of various types, the proper control of traffic on business streets and residential streets, etc. An appendix explains in detail how to make traffic engineering field studies.

Ship Built for Peace.

ANOTHER luxury steamship bidding for American tourist patronage this summer will enter the regular transatlantic service with its appearance in New York harbor on June 13. This is the Oslofjord, new flagship of the Norwegian-America line. On the Scandinavian end of her voyage, the ship will dock only a few minutes away from the Oslo exhibition grounds, where a great fair will depict for visitors the scenic, social and economic beauties and achievements of Norway and its neighbors.

The most interesting thing about the vessel is that it has been designed and built with no thought of its possible quick conversion to wartime purposes. Many big liners are justified by their builders because of their value as troop ships during a foreign war. That fate is not contemplated for the Oslofjord. Norway has not been involved as a belligerent in war for more than 100 years and believes that it has learned how to keep peace with the world.

Depression Cost.

AN INTERESTING comparison in federal debt figures appears in a chart prepared by statisticians of the Industrial Conference Board.

The deficits in the government budget for the depression years of 1930 to 1933 added $6,300,000,000 to the national debt. Deficits incurred from 1933 to 1937 added $13,900,000,000 more. Thus the federal depression debt for the last seven years totals roughly $20,000,000,000. The additional deficit of the present fiscal year is expected to be three or four billions more.

Now, the increase of the national debt during the period of the World war was $24,300,000,000. Thus at the close of the present fiscal year the depression will have set us back financially nearly as much as the war did.

Sodas for Goodness.

A DRUGGIST in a New Jersey town did not like the noise and scuffling of a few unruly youngsters outside his store. He had a bright idea. He would improve the conduct of all youngsters by offering an ice cream soda to every youngster who got A in deportment in school.

He did and they were good. So good that on the afternoon the report cards were given out he gave free sodas to 110 public and 40 parochial school children. Which confirms an earlier impression that hope of reward is a greater influence than fear of punishment.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Those serious-minded little gels in the forefront of the Japanese silk boycott are rarely heard from in these parts lately, although New York can still get hot and hothead about it all.

A New York hotel with a night spot called the Japanese Room was careful in a recent magazine write-up to have it emphasized that there was not much else Japanese about the place except the name—no Japanese food or fiddlers to annoy the lisle-stocking trade. Besides the name, it still has a dash of Japanese decoration (the magazine called it decor, but to blazes with that). Otherwise it is impartial toward the Orient.

A person would think that Washington, right near the core of conflict between Japanese and Chinese interests in this country, would hear more of it—but not so. Perhaps it is Washington's innate diplomacy, gained from neighboring with foreign problems in these trying years.

Only recently one of New York's lisle-stocking lassies dipped into Washington to report on the progress of affairs in the big city. Quite obviously she wore lisle stockings. In our ceaseless quest of knowledge we asked her if she had adopted cotton under-effects as well, shunning silk.

"Oh, no," she said in an offhand manner, "I have enough silk underwear to last me until it's over."

And that, we thought, was the proper eye-to-eye way of facing the thing.

Miss Meade Makes It.

MISS ANNA MEADE of Washington has found there is more than one way to get to the Orient. A year ago she set out for adventure in China, only to be turned back by the war. After a few weeks at home she met Holdsworth Minnigerode of the U. S. foreign service on duty in Washington. Later he was transferred by the State Department to Singapore, site of the newly expanded British naval base.

Miss Meade will leave in July for Signapore to be married to Minnigerode.

If Bombs Don't Get You—

FARMINGDALE, Long Island, is a lucky city.

On a recent date the Army air corps, in a simulated attack, "bombed" the city mercilessly. Nobody was hurt.

On the same day Farmingdale was "bombed," 98 persons were killed by automobile accidents in other parts of the country—or about that many. The annual automobile death toll is around 36,000, which is nearly 100 a day.

United States Steel has produced in technicolor a brief film telling the story of making steel and soon will show it to audiences of its own steel workers. Seems the lads who make the country's steel get to know their own job well without having an oportunity to know the rest of the process. The company hopes the film will help them out . . . Landon Arouses Renewed Interest

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Alf M. Landon's recent activity as a public speaker is something of a puzzle to politicians in Washington and maybe elsewhere.

The 1936 presidential candidate of the Republicans generally was regarded as having been effectually disposed of right then. And, in fact, he did keep pretty quiet for quite a while after his defeat, but lately he is being increasingly drafted as orator-in-chief at gatherings, of one sort or another, over a good part of the United States.

Is an attempt being made to advertise his G. O. P. leadership (for he still is his party's titular leader) with a view to 1940?

* * *

WHY?

It seems like a ridiculous idea, considering the thoroughness of his beating two years ago.

Nevertheless, why otherwise is he being publicized as obviously he IS being publicized now? Despite his presidential candidacy, one would not consider him enough of a celebrity to be widely in demand as an attraction at points far from his home state. He still is prominent in the Sunflower commonwealth, of course, but his speaking dates have taken him hither and yon beyond its borders.

It rather looks as if he were being PROMOTED.

NO SPELL-BINDER.

Other licked statesmen, like William Jennings Bryan, continued to be mighty spell-binders even after their respective lickings.

However, ex-Governor Landon is no spell-binder of any consequence.

He simply is a rational, moderate talker. He makes no audience get up and screech and yell. One wonders how he ever orated himself into the governorship of Kansas. He hasn't a bit of elocutionary appeal.

SMALL PLACES LIKE HIM.

Landon certainly was not a pronounced hit as a national campaign spokesman in 1936.

Yet today, traveling around from burg to burg, he appears to register reasonably well. He stirs up no hysterical outbursts, but folk evidently like him—and he IS an extremely likable chap at short range. No one ever was freer from clap-trap. Possible he is a trifle too free from it for political purposse.

In any event, he manifestly is scoring remarkably well in the communities he has visited in the last few weeks. If he can do so on a sufficient scale out in the "sticks," perhaps he can partly offset our metropolitan centers. After all, there are a lot of farm votes—and a lot of smallish cities that know themselves to be essentially agricultural also. Obviously they take to Landon—and not in Kansas alone.

GOOD PUBLICITY.

Incidentally, the ex-governor has a "good press."

The papers do not exactly "enthuse" over him, but they give him adequate space, good position in their columns, and give an impression of him as an able, preeminently sensible, reliable and tolerably liberal citizen, with a highly creditable gubernatorial record back of him.

In short, it is excellent publicity.

ANYBODY ADVISING?

If Landon had received a barrelful more of the same kind of publicity in 1936, he might have made a better showing on that occasion—though he would have been beaten, at that, scarcely needful to say

I doubt that the G. O. P. national committee devised the present program — its management having been so technically awful for a long time past.

Still, it may have hit on something accidentally.

Or maybe Landon is under some new private management.

* * *

WILL HAVE SAY.

Let no reader mistake me—

I am not so cuckoo as to think that Alf Landon ever will be presidentially nominated again.

Or Herbert Hoover, either.

I say only that I am surprised to hear both of them, flattened out as they were in 1932 and 1936, listened to so respectfully as in 1938.

Why! they may have each or both of them appreciable influence concerning the presidential choice of the G. O. P.'s 1940 convention. Neither will be nominated, but each will have something to say.

ALL of US

—By MARSHALL MASLIN

There Are No Strangers

I USED TO divide human beings into two groups. . . . . First there were my friends. Outside of these ws n enormous group of people whom I didn't know and didn't want to know. They were strangers.

I was at ease with my friends. I liked them. I knew they liked me. We could stand on a street corner and talk for hours. We could talk all night, even, about science or religion or other people and enjoy every minute of our talk. We were a special group, initiated in a special society, and all the rest of the race were strangers . . . . I was pretty snooty on the subject of strangers. But not nearly as snooty as I seemed to be.

Because, the truth was that I was afraid of people I didn't know. Self-conscious and vain, I met no one without embarrassment, without wondering what impression I was making on them, what they were thinking of me. Unsure of myself, I feared their judgment of me, and gave neither myself a chance to like them nor them the opportunity of knowing me as I wished to be known.

It took two years of war to teach me that there are no strangers. I might have learned it, anyway, but that experience of being taken by the scruff of my neck and tossed into an army of men whom I had never seen before and might never see again—that changed me in a hurry.

It wasn't long before I learned that the other fellow was wondering about me as I was wondering about him. You're from California or Indiana and you're sitting by the road passing the time of day with a lad from Texas or Maine. A shell comes whistling over and drops about 20 feet away. You go into a ditch and he goes with you. You come up pale and sheepish and feeling lucky. You look at him and he's as white as you. You've both been scared and neither can deny it. At that instant you can't be strangers. You're as close as though you'd known each other all your lives.

You have the grace to admit you were shaken, and so has he. You walk west and he walks east and you never see him again, but you do not part as strangers. He has taken a little of you with him, and you carry a bit of him in the pockets of your spirit. And after a while you learn, as I have, that none of all these men and women you pass on the streets of life are truly strangers. Each one of them could become your friend if some little thing happened to throw you together. . . . . It's a truth that is good to remember.

Health Advice

Infant Health Signs.

—By DR. ROYAL COPELAND

IT IS important for the young mother to be familiar with all those signs which show that her baby is normal and healthy. Then, if they are missing, she will know the child is not well and should have medical care.

The mother job is the best of all jobs, but it is not an easy one by any means. Unlike the older child and the adult, the infant cannot tell in words that it suffers pain. The mother must learn how changes from normal can be quickly detected. Certain simple signs, such as changes in the appearance of the skin, restlessness, irritability and persistent crying, may be the only warnings given by the sick child.

Has Clear Skin.

A healthy baby has a clear skin. Its eyes are bright and wide open. The child has what is known as a "contented" appearance. Such a youngster cries very little, has a good appetite, and sleeps quietly with the mouth closed.

If the baby suffers from some discomfort, it appears tired and as irritable and easily annoyed. Very likely the infant will cry constantly and be restless in spite of every attention. The bowels may be irregular. The stools, perhaps, are abnormal in color, odor and consistency.

These are signs that must not be ignored, and because of their importance the mother should be familiar with them. Let me repeat that any deviation from the normal should arouse suspicion of disease and the need of medical attention. Often the infant shows no other sign of ill health than a constant loss in weight or a failure to gain weight. These are important signs because a steady gain in weight is a characteristic of the healthy baby.

Facts On Weight.

Under normal circumstances the average baby doubles its birth weight in the fifth or sixth month. By the end of the first year the weight should be approximately three times the birth weight. Regular weighing keeps the mother informed of the child's welfare.

There are other signs which indicate whether development and growth are normal. For example, the baby should be able to hold up its head by the third month. At seven or eight months it should be able to sit erect and begin to creep around.

Of course, some babies are slow in doing these things, but if the infant has the other signs of good health, delay in these matters is not important. In the near future I shall tell you some more about the normal progress of a healthy infant.

Does Decency Pay?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

CROOKEDNESS and cruelty everywhere . . . chaos and corruption . . . screaming from the headlines . . . thudding over the air waves. What can you believe in any more? What's worth fighting for? Do you still cling to your principles? Or do you turn away, crying—"AW, WHAT'S THE USE?"

Even the children echo our bitter doubt. Here's 16-year-old Evelyn Barnes of Sheridan, Ark., voicing, perhaps, your own disgust and disillusionment.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"They're at it again! The same old hooey about 'making the world safe for Democracy' and 'protecting the under dog.' And we Young Americans are as patriotic as those who went before us. But why should we fool ourselves? Why go into the horror of war 'to make the world safe for democracy' WHEN WE KNOW IT WILL NEVER STAY SAFE? Why 'protect the little Nations' WHEN WE KNOW THEY WILL NEVER STAY PROTECTED?

"Ideals . . . principles . . . even patriotism . . . they all sound fine—and I suppose if a war comes our men will go marching off, just as they did before. But what's the use of it all? Can't we see it's all slimey propaganda? Why not face the ugly reality and admit that the sacrifice and struggle are all useless?"

Evelyn Barnes—age 16,
Sheridan, Ark.

I understand, little girl. No one could hate war more than I, or despise propaganda more completely. And I know, too, how cruelly hard it is to hold on to faith and fineness in the face of the sneering and materialism. Never did decency appear less worth while nor democracy seem a more futile dream. . . .

YET I'M TELLING YOU YOUNGSTER—THE FIGHT DOES PAY!

I do not mean the fight against any foreign nation—which, pray God may never come. I mean that perpetual struggle against cruelty and unfairness, dishonesty and indecency, greed and lust which men have waged within and between themselves since the dream of civilization first began.

It is true, as you have said, that democracy does not "STAY SAFE." It is also true in our private lives we lapse from honor, kindness and courage. But this is to be expected. It is part of our long climb up from the jungle. National wars and personal excesses are both part of that struggle against the Powers of Darkness.

BUT, IN THE END, DECENCY WILL TRIUMPH! WE WILL NOT ALWAYS BE SNEAKING SAVAGES . . . TORTURING AND BETRAYING EACH OTHER. SURELY AND STEADILY THE LOVELIER DREAM COMES TRUE . . . THAT DREAM OF A FINER, BRAVER BROTHERHOOD WHICH WE CALL CIVILIZATION.

And each noble gesture, however small, which you or I may make, brings that civilization nearer. What's the use of playing fair—as nations or individuals? What's the use of having Faith . . . of Struggling and Sacrificing . . . in the face of a world gone mad? Why not forget all these fine-sounding phrases and grab while the grabbing's good? That's why—

BECAUSE DECENCY IS THE REAL, THE LASTING, THE ONLY WORTH-WHILE PROGRAM FOR ANY TWO-FISTED MORTAL TO CHOOSE.

Hate war! Hate the corruption and greed which breed war! But do not despise those sacrifices and struggles which men make for principles — any time — anywhere. For without those struggles, we would still be one with the beasts.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Notes on the Big Town, jotted here and there on a round-up:

Manhattan has many fascinating drinks, but the most intriguing now being purveyed are (a) Roman Smile, (b) The Dagger, (c) Royal Romance, and (d) Tahaitian Punch.

Bob Burns is on a shopping spree . . . He bought 16 blue shirts his first day in New York . . . Bob's name sticks with you, doesn't it? . . . You never have to ask him what it is . . . Lum Fong is another . . . Mr. Fong is one of Manhattan's most noted restaurateurs.

Dorothea Lawrence reports seeing this dual feature on the marquee of a Jersey City theater:

Battle of Broadway
Nurse from Brooklyn

Alfred W. McCann, the food commentator, likes to take photographic hegiras, his best feat being a complete photographic record of the Alaskan salmon run. . . . Walter Fleischmann, writing from Hollywood, says New York is soon to have a glimpse of that strenuous Latin game, jai-alai, which will be introduced here by Anthony Quinn, the actor who looks like Valentino. . . . The similarity is so noticeable that Paramount will remake "The Sheik" with Quinn in the Valentino role.

FOR our better-late-than-never dept.: Yesterday Charles Atlas, the strong man, was hurrying down Seventh avenue . . . "And whither in such a rush, Mr. Atlas?" . . . "There's a movie I missed being 'reshown at one of the neighborhood houses," he confessed. "I want to catch up on my cinema."

"Which movie is that?" I inquired.

"One I missed," he replied, "One I missed when I was a boy—The Birth of a Nation."

Which reminds me that this picture really is around . . . It's still being shown, and making money. . . . The acting, of course, is dated, but the battle scenes make you cry.

Marc Connelly is a sort of sentimental producer . . . All of his productions have a nostalgic twang, as witness the great and glorious "Green Pastures," later his "Having Wonderful Time," and now he has come along with "Two Bouquets." It seems to this observer that this last selection is a genuine hazard. Its quaintly Victorian, and musicals of that sort have a habit of languishing in Manhattan. But, with Marc at the helm, you never know.

Timely Editorial

Place To Putter.

Fortunate is the man with a back yard. It affords endless opportunities for enjoyment and for profitable occupation, and it requires no great imagination for one to feel that he is a country gentleman. Cowper sighed:

O, for a lodge in some vast wilderness,
Some boundless continuity of shade.

In the ordinary suburban back yard there will be shade enough for any reasonable man. Perhaps there will be a maple or an oak tree, and if the owner has a frugal mind there will be a peach and an apple as well. There will be flowers and very likely a few vegetables. Of course a grapevine or two. For the effort expended they yield more than anything else. It does not take a very large plot of ground to produce amazing results, but it does take work. Growing things need to be watched and tended.

The chief joy about a back yard is the pride one takes in the labor of one's hands. The flowers, the fruits, and the vegetables all have an added value because they are one's own accomplishment. Then there is the by-product of the garden—long hours out-of-doors. It is the true sunshine cure.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Plea For Laughter.

Laugh a little or a lot

$272,516,979 APPROPRIATION WINS APPROVAL

House Committee OK's Bill Designed to Launch U. S. Big Navy Program.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The final big money bill of the present session of congress—a $272,516,979 deficiency appropriations measure which includes funds to launch the nation on its great naval program—was approved today by the house appropriations committee.

The measure, representing a slash of $26,730,465 under budget estimates, also carried appropriations for refund of processing taxes, re-capitalization of the commodity credit corporation and to effect return of social security taxes to 13 states, Hawaii and Alaska.

The bill was immediately rushed to the house floor for debate in the drive toward adjournment.

Five Major Items.

The five major items in the bill are:

1. Navy—$35,802,000 for naval yard expansion and to start construction on two replacement battleships, two light cruisers, one large seaplane tender, a mine sweeper, destroyer tender, two oil tankers, two fleet tugs, and eight high-speed "mosquito fleet" type craft; having an estimated ultimate cost amounting in all to $247,831,500. Funds to start work on a new $44,000,000 light aircraft carrier and a $3,000,000 dirigible were refused, the committee recommending that the navy seek them next year.

2. Commodity Credit corporation—$94,285,404 to restore the agency's $100,000,000 capitalization impaired through losses sustained on its cotton and wheat holdings.

3. Treasury department — $50,000,000 for refunding processing taxes collected under the original AAA, cotton, tobacco and potato acts

4. Treasury department — $40,561,886 representing federal employers' tax collected from and to be returned to Alaska, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Dakota, Washington and Wyoming.

5. Federal bureau of investigation — $173,000 to end the furloughing of G-men caused by a shortage in funds. The committee pointed out that the added funds were made necessary because of recent kidnaping and extortion cases, and recommended that the G-men set up an emergency fund to meet such situations in the future.

Most of the $26,000,000 reduction under budget estimates was accounted for by $10,431,000 in the navy's requests, $8,333,290 in the treasury's, and $3,070,465 in the war department's.

The bill also included $3,000,000 to start construction on the new proposed $26,000,000 war department buildings, and a like sum to commence buildings for the social security and railroad retirement boards at an ultimate cost of $14,250,000.

IOWA DEFEATS NEW DEALER

Gillette Far Ahead in Race for U. S. Senate; Dickinson Wins G. O. P. Contest.

He supported the reorganization bill, the public utility holding company bill and many other administration measures.

Returns from 1,617 precincts have the other Democratic senatorial candidates:

W. J. Byerhoff, 4,045, J. J. Meyers, 11,670, and Mrs. Ellsworth Richardson, 6,634.

Both parties also selected state ticket, legislative and county ticket nominees at yesterday's polls. Candidates for governor on both tickets were unopposed.

Wearin Defeat Cheers Court Bill's Foes.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Democratic senators who fought the Roosevelt court bill were jubilant today over the decisive primary victory of Sen. Guy Gillette of Iowa, first of their number up for renomination this year.

It was this group which focused national attention on the Iowa contest by senate declarations that WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins was trying to "put WPA into politics" through his endorsement of Representative Otha Wearin, Gillette's principal challenger.

After the votes were counted, these senators described Wearin's defeat as a sharp rebuke to Hopkins

Anti-administration legislators, in fact, regarded the primary as a distinct setback to the Roosevelt forces not only in view of Hopkins' stand but because Wearin himself claimed White House support.

The only outward manifestation of the latter was a reference to Wearin by James Roosevelt as "my friend." It was the second time this year the president's secretary-son had dropped a hint in a primary contest. The first time he was more successful, having endorsed Senator Pepper (D.-Fla.) who won overwhelming renomination.

Some administration supporters contended the issue in Iowa had not been clearcut. They pointed out that Gillette repeatedly expressed his loyalty to the president and had voted for many Roosevelt measures, Albeit he declared he was no "rubber stamp" and would act in congress as he thought best.

Several of the court bill foes intend to campaign on the same formula. One of the group—Senator Van Nuys of Indiana—expects to be denied renomination by the Democratic state organization, and will run as an independent.

Iowa Democrats who were looking ahead to the autumn campaign regarded the party ranks as perhaps more unified by Gillette's victory than if Wearin had won, for Gov. Nels Kraschel, unopposed for renomination, openly backed the senator.

Most of the Democratic state officials also were in Gillette's camp, as was Sen. Clyde Herring.

Blow to 'Left Wing,' Gillette Declares.

CHEROKEE, Ia —(AP)—Senator Guy M. Gillette said today the result of yesterday's Democratic senatorial primary, in which he apparently won a decisive victory, "will give that left wing group, which started out to control the party nomination in 1940, a very great incentive to stop and think things over."

"My candidacy had become a symbol of resentment against a well planned attempt by a group outside the state to dictate to Iowa Democrats whom they should send to Washington," Gillette said "This plan would have subverted the constitutional right of a people to be represented in congress by those of their own choosing.

"I happen to be the candidate against whom the plan was made I happen to be the first senator coming up for renomination of the group which had voted against the court reorganization. I think that was the genesis of this plan to which I referred."

The senator said if elected in the fall he would "continue to vote for the welfare of the state and nation, as conscientiously as I can."

Politics In Relief Hit by Vote, Claim.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Senator Burke (D., Neb.) said today the renomination of Senator Gillette (D., Iowa) was a clear indication "the people of the United States do not approve of politics in relief."

Burke, who like Gillette opposed President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill, added:

"I think it makes very clear that the people want their representatives and senators in Washington to use their own best judgment rather than following in all cases the lead of the executive."

Young Carroll, who confessed shooting the girl because they feared she was to become a mother, was acquitted of the murder. The Matthiesens stood by the boy throughout the trial. The jury, in voting not guilty at the trial because of insanity, unintentionally neglected to say "at the time of the crime," thus causing the boy to be taken to a psycopathic ward for tests to prove his sanity.

DEM CHIEF HAS CONCRETE 'PLAN'

proposed placing a sidewalk solicitor in the field in order to speed up the construction work and thereby not only keep the 250 WPA employes at work, but also furnish additional employment for men who faced the loss of their jobs.

City officials explained that Kallmerten and Baer was the only firm in the city distributing the pre-mixed product and that the city had a contract with the company which quoted a price of $8.75 per cubic yard, with a fast setting concrete to be delivered at $10.25 per cubic yard.

Specifications in the contract call for a mixture of one part cement, two and one-half parts sand and four parts stone, the same used by WPA in the present construction program.

Patton and Styert contended that Kallmerten's plan would not speed up the construction work and would tend to defeat the purpose for which the project was created. They said the use of pre-mixed concrete, with the present rate of solicitation would cause the lay-off of approximately 50 WPA workers.

While the city would be required to purchase the pre-mixed product exclusively from Kallmerten and Baer under the new proposal, it is now purchasing the supplies, by contract entered into in January, from three city firms.

Cement is purchased from M. L. Branyan and Bros. at the cost of $2.08 per barrel, sand from the Purdy construction company at $1.13 per ton, and crushed stone from Voegele Bros. at $1.20 per ton.

INSULATION FOR HOMES CAN BE APPLIED EASILY

Variety of Materials Offered Home Owner for Economical, Comfort Purposes.

The value of insulation is frequently considerable in the savings it effects in reduced fuel consumption, but its principal value is often in the increased comfort it provides both in summer and winter.

Insulation is available in several forms and in a variety of materials. Fill and blanket insulation consist of loosely packed fibers or grains which resist heat transfer in much the same way as a sweater or woolen blanket does.

Reflective insulations, as the name implies, are bright-surfaced materials which reflect heat back into, or out of, the house, instead of permitting it to flow through the walls. The action with heat is similar to that of a mirror with light.

Rigid-board insulation is made up of fibrous materials similar to the fill or blanket type, except that the fibers are held together like the fibers in papers, giving the material a certain amount of structural strength. For this reason this material may be used to replace a plaster base and, under certain conditions, sheathing.

The fill insulation can be blown into the stud spaces with compressed air in existing houses or, in the case of new houses and unfinished attics, may be placed between the ceiling beams or studs. Blanket insulation can be applied to ceilings in the same way. Rigid boards can be applied as an attic insulation by nailing to the top of the ceiling beams or to the underside of the roof rafters. Most manufacturers of insulation are in a position to furnish advice and detailed drawings showing the proper method of application.

Funds with which to insulate a house can be obtained under the terms of the Federal Housing administration's property improvement credit plan. The funds are forthcoming from private lending agencies on generous terms and are repayable in monthly installments.

House With a Pueblo Touch

Here is a house for people who appreciate modern planning. Its open and well organized interior spells comfortable, convenient living. Its trim exterior is interestingly designed in two units on different levels, borrowing a note from the pueblos of Colorado.

The general living quarters unit (living room, dining room and kitchen) is one story high with a sun deck on the roof. The other unit, two stories high, provides three bedrooms and a bath on the upper level, with a garage and basement below. A central stairway leads up and down to bedrooms and basement.

The walls are brick, insulated against sound and weather. The interior is finished in knotty pine, fir and other woods. There are built-in beds, dressing tables, cabinets and other practical features.

Architect Caspar Forman Hegner designed the house for a Colorado client and it was chosen by the American Home, 444 Madison Ave., New York, N. Y.

CLEANLINESS IN KITCHEN EASY

Cleanliness always ranks high in any kitchen. In kitchens of earlies days, wooden tables and floors, smooth with countless scrubbings, were characteristic features. Bright pots and pans, of gleaming, polished copper, were testimonials to the patience and industry of the housewives of a century ago.

Cleanliness in the kitchen is essential to safeguarding the health of those whose food comes from the kitchen. Thus cleanliness becomes a first requisite under army regulations wherever the field kitchen may be established. In hospitals, perpetual cleanliness is a constant requirement. Hotels take pride in spotless, shining kitchens through which guests may be conducted without fear of unfavorable impressions.

No longer, however, does cleanliness in the kitchen demand backbreaking hours of washing, scrubbing, scoring and polishing. All dust pockets, cracks and crevices in which dirt might lodge are avoided. Seamless floor coverings are largely impervious to grease and grime, and where they join the walls are often turned up to provide further ease in cleaning.

FRIENDLINESS and WARMTH!
A Home built of lumber possesses friendliness and warmth that no other type of construction can offer. That little cottage or twenty room house that is built with wood, seems to beckon and say: "Here is friendliness . . . here is HOME!" Of two types of living rooms which of these would you choose? That which is panelled with wood, or that which has cold, forbidding walls—walls that do not possess the qualities of wood. Naturally, you would choose that which is constructed of wood.
Build With Lumber . . . For Durability and Satisfaction!
• Lumber homes endure for generations.
• Wood finish is friendly and warm.
• Be lumber wise—not penny foolish.
• Quality Lumber is a lifetime material.
• 14½ inches of wood has more insulating value than 10 feet of solid concrete.
• The "termite scare" may be forgotten by an expenditure of less than $10.00 when your home is being built.
• Full cellars are necessary to real comfort in this climate.
• The majority of fires start on the inside of a home.
• A frame house can be readily repaired after a fire, and alterations and additions may be made at a reasonable cost.
